BY NOW, I HOPE ALL OF YOU HAVE HEARD ABOUT THE PHENOMENAL GIFT FROM BOB McKINNEY TO NAME OUR LAW SCHOOL. It would be almost impossible to overstate the significance of this for the future of the school and for the State of Indiana. The school is now positioned to take it to the next level (to borrow an oft-used phrase from the athletic world).

I should emphasize that Bob would not have made this transformational gift if he had not had the vision to see what this law school can be and the confidence to believe that his investment will be used wisely to advance the school’s greatness. Thus, while we certainly have to thank Bob for that vision and confidence, we also have to thank our superb, hard-working faculty and staff that make this the excellent school that it is, the great students who make all of us proud, as well as all of the many alumni and friends who have stepped up to support the school with their time, wisdom, and dollars. Without the commitment and contributions of everyone in the law school’s wonderful extended family, it would not be the kind of place that would generate the great positive momentum that Bob’s gift and all of the school’s other recent accomplishments reflect.

I have often argued that our law school is and has long been the single most important educational asset in all of Indiana inasmuch as it produces most of the lawyers and judges for the state as well as much of the business and political leadership. But with the resources that Bob’s marvelous gift will provide, along with the additional funds being raised in the capital campaign and the new base budget dollars being provided by a renegotiated deal with the university lowering our annual overhead charges, the school is now positioned to evolve from being an excellent Indiana law school to being one of the nation’s best and most respected public law schools.

As I mentioned, the school’s faculty plays an integral part in making our school the fine institution that it is. This issue focuses on several of our outstanding faculty. I think you will be impressed with their passion and their accomplishments. And I hope that all of you will have the opportunity soon to get to know many of the faculty who have arrived since you left, and that you will follow their careers as they lead our school to greater national and international prominence. I am sure you will be as proud of them as I am.
Professor Carrie Hagan Presents in Spain

ON JULY 13, PROFESSOR CARRIE HAGAN presented a paper on “Marginalizing Discrimination: How Social Justice, Advocacy and LGBT Awareness on a Clinical Level Can Make Equality More of a Reality,” at the 6th Global Alliance for Justice Education Worldwide Conference in Valencia, Spain. The conference, which hosted approximately 285 delegates from 43 countries, this year was held in partnership with the 9th International Journal of Clinical Legal Education (IJCLE) Conference. The conference was hosted by the Institute of Human Rights, Faculty of Law, University of Valencia. The Valencia Conference is an opportunity for law teachers, law students, legal practitioners, jurists and social activists to acquire new ideas, models, and skills for the use of education to promote social justice.

Professor Hagan’s talk pointed out that clinical students, through training regarding LGBT issues, can make a difference for a vulnerable population that may not otherwise obtain legal assistance.

Professor Hagan earned her B.A. from the University of Kansas and her J.D. from the University of Cincinnati College of Law. She is a Clinical Associate Professor of Law. Previously, she directed a family law/domestic violence clinic in Rhode Island, and was supervising attorney for a domestic violence clinic in Ohio. Her research agenda focuses on interdisciplinary partnerships between law and social work.

Professor Cynthia Adams Collaborates with Kenya Law School

AT THE INVITATION OF THE KENYA SCHOOL OF LAW, PROFESSOR CYNTHIA ADAMS made a presentation on clinical skills curriculum development at the school’s Midterm Review, held in Nairobi on September 21-23. Those attending included the Minister of Justice and Constitutional Affairs, Justices of the Kenyan High Court, the Secretary of Kenya’s Council of Legal Education, the Deans from Moi University School of Law and Strathmore University School of Law, as well as administration and law faculty from the Kenya Law School, Moi University, the University of Nairobi, and Strathmore University.

The Kenya Law School is consulting with Professor Adams on enhancing its Advocates Training Programme. Kenya Law School, founded in 1963 as the country’s first law school, began its one-year Advocates Training Programme in 2008 upon recommendation from the Ministerial Taskforce on the Development of a Policy and Legal Framework for Legal Education in Kenya. The Advocates Training Programme provides clinical skills training to prepare students for admission to the Roll of Advocates and to become officers of Kenya’s High Court.

Judge Robb, ’78, Receives Antoinette Dakin Leach Award

CHIEF JUDGE MARGRET G. ROBB, of the Indiana Court of Appeals, received the Indianapolis Bar Association’s 2011 Antoinette Dakin Leach Award on October 5, at the IBA’s Women and the Law Division’s “Women, Law & Leadership Symposium.”

The award, established to honor outstanding women in the legal profession, is named for one of the first female lawyers in Indiana.

Chief Judge Robb expressed her gratitude, saying, “We’ve gone from Antoinette Dakin Leach and Helen Gougar to this day. Who knows where the next 130 years will take us?—not only as a milestone that commemorates women’s achievements, but the achievements of all who value excellence and fairness and the promise of the law to treat all people equally.”

Appointed to the Court of Appeals in July, 1998, Chief Judge Robb holds B.S. and M.S. degrees from Purdue University, a J.D. (magna cum laude) from the law school, and is a graduate of the Graduate Program for Indiana Judges. In 2011, she was elected by her colleagues as the first woman Chief Judge in the Court’s 110-year history.

She has held numerous positions in state and national bar and law-related organizations and is a frequent speaker on legal topics for attorneys, judges, and professional, civic and community organizations. Chief Judge Robb has received numerous awards for her contributions to the judicial system.
Hershman Named to Director Position

INDIANA SENATOR BRANDT HERSHEYMAN has been named the Director of Educational Outreach for the Program on Law and State Government at the law school.

Senator Hershman, also a second-year student at the school, comes from a rural background and has experience working with elected officials at the local, state, and federal levels. He has represented Senate District 7 since 2000, which encompasses parts of Jasper, White, Carroll, Tippecanoe, Clinton, and Boone counties.

He intended to enroll in law school right after completing his undergraduate studies; he majored in political science at Purdue University. But an opportunity to work in President George H.W. Bush’s administration was “too good to pass up.” He sees earning a law degree as a benefit to his work as a state senator, and believes that there are opportunities for non-lawyer public servants to interact with the law school.

“This is a unique opportunity to leverage the resources of the law school in a proactive way to benefit those in public service,” Senator Hershman said.

Janet Gongola, ’03, Oversees New IP Law Enforcement

JANET GONGOLA,’03, has been appointed as Patent Reform Coordinator by David Kappos, Undersecretary of Commerce for Intellectual Property and Director of the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office. In this role, she is the chief agency official responsible for implementing the rules, regulations, and studies in support of the Leahy-Smith America Invents Act (AIA), the biggest change in patent law since 1836.

The AIA converts the patent procedure from a first-to-invent to a first-to-file system. It also creates new definitions of prior art, excludes certain subject matter as unpatentable, provides new post grant challenges to patents, eliminates the best mode defense, replaces interferences with derivation proceedings, expands prior user rights, and makes a myriad of other major alterations, both substantive and procedural.

Previously, Gongola served as Associate Solicitor, Office of the Solicitor, U.S. Patent & Trademark Office.

Professor and Student Appear on L3C Panel in Chicago

EVENING DIVISION STUDENT, DR. ERIN ALBERT, ’12, and Professor Antony Page spoke at the inaugural conference on the “L3C” (or low-profit limited liability company) in Chicago, June 6-7. The event examined a new paradigm in private-public partnerships.

Albert and Page spoke on a panel entitled “The L3C: From Hypothetical to Reality.” Albert presented the story of two L3Cs, real and hypothetical, notably in health care. Professor Page discussed Ben & Jerry’s, their supposed need to sell out and what would have happened if it was an L3C.

The event was sponsored by the Americans for Community Development and the Levy Entrepreneurship Center of the Kellogg School of Management at Northwestern University. The gathering received additional support from the Council on Foundations.

Albert, who holds a B.S. in Pharmacy, an M.B.A. in Marketing, and a Doctor of Pharmacy, is a business owner, writer, assistant professor at Butler University and a current evening division law student. Professor Page is a John S. Grimes Fellow at the law school, who holds a J.D., an M.B.A., and a Bachelor of Commerce degree. He specializes in corporations, corporate governance, and mergers & acquisitions. His scholarly work has been cited by several U.S. courts, including the Supreme Court of the United States and four state supreme courts.

Generosity Personified
Law School Named After Robert H. McKinney

“It is impossible to overstate the impact of this gift...
Indiana University President Michael A. McRobbie announced the naming of the Indiana University School of Law – Indianapolis in honor of Indianapolis attorney, banker and civic leader Robert H. McKinney.

The school is now known as the Indiana University Robert H. McKinney School of Law in recognition of the largest gift ever received by the school and one of the largest in legal education. McKinney’s gift of $24 million, along with matching funds committed through the IUPUI IMPACT fundraising campaign, brings the total value of the gift to $31.5 million.

The landmark gift will provide funding for five endowed chairs to attract and retain nationally recognized scholar-teachers to the faculty. The gift will also create a $17.5 million endowment to fund McKinney Family Scholarships for outstanding students.

“With this extremely generous gift, Bob McKinney will have a transformative impact on a law school that already has provided the academic foundation for a remarkable number of lawyers, judges, and community and government leaders across Indiana and beyond,” McRobbie said.

“This gift will be instrumental in our efforts to attract nationally renowned legal scholars to our law school in Indianapolis, as well as top-flight students from around the country, and we are deeply grateful to Bob for his generosity,” McRobbie added.

Law school dean, Gary R. Roberts, said the gift will make a major difference in the school’s ability to achieve its long-term goals.

“It is impossible to overstate the impact of this gift upon the law school, the campus and the state,” Roberts said, adding that the McKinney School is believed to be one of just a few of the nearly 200 law schools in the country to be named for a major benefactor. “It provides for faculty chairs and student support to create an unparalleled resource with which to realize the aspirations of our school to become one of the finest public law schools in the nation. And because this law school produces so many leaders throughout the state, this is an investment in the future of the people of Indiana and beyond.”

Dean Roberts continued, “The most important asset anybody owns is his name—and Bob, giving your hard-earned treasure is certainly a wonderful gift, and we’ll take it—but giving us your name is even more special and significant—and it puts a special responsibility on all of us to make sure that you will always be proud of this school.”

Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis Chancellor Charles R. Bantz praised the gift as being consistent both with the school’s future vision and Bob McKinney’s commitment to legal education in Indiana. “This tremendous gift supports the McKinney School’s commitment to being a leader in legal education,” Bantz said. “As a founding partner of Bose McKinney & Evans LLP, one of the largest law firms in Indianapolis, Bob McKinney will lend his name to a school that can proudly claim many prominent lawyers, judges and public servants worldwide as its alumni.”

“A law degree is a great introduction to broad areas of leadership—political leadership, business leadership and civic leadership,” McKinney said. “The IU law school in Indianapolis plays a vital role in developing the leaders Indiana needs to succeed. I am excited to be able to make a commitment that will help the school build on its proud heritage and achieve its goal of being one of the best law schools in the country.”

“Bob is absolutely dedicated to excellence and to his community, and expresses that commitment with integrity, loyalty and grace,” said IU Foundation President Gene Tempel. “His gift today stands as a challenge and invitation to others who believe in the mission of the school and the importance of its contributions to the community and the state.”

McKinney’s gift, which will be administered and invested by the IU Foundation, was made through the IUPUI IMPACT campaign, a $1.25 billion fundraising campaign publicly announced in October 2010. As of September 2011, the effort had surpassed the $1 billion mark.

The IU Board of Trustees approved the naming at its October meeting. The name change took effect on December 1. A formal naming ceremony is planned for the fall of 2012.
Robert H. McKinney

Throughout his career—as a legal, business and civic leader—Robert H. McKinney has served his community, his state and his nation with integrity and passion.

McKinney was born November 7, 1925, in Indianapolis, Indiana. His boyhood dream of becoming a national park guide was derailed when World War II broke out. Eager to serve his country, McKinney attended the U.S. Naval Academy, where he received a B.S. in engineering. He served in the Pacific theater for three years (including a period on General Douglas MacArthur’s staff) before returning to law school in Indianapolis in 1949. Recalled to the Navy after receiving his law degree from Indiana University, he served in the Korean War for two years.

Until his retirement in 2005, McKinney was chairman and CEO of First Indiana Corporation, parent company of First Indiana Bank (now M&I Bank), at the time the largest bank based in Indianapolis. He was chairman and CEO of The Somerset Group, Inc., a diversified manufacturing and investment company. He was also a founding partner of Bose McKinney & Evans LLP, one of the largest law firms in Indianapolis, and was instrumental in the firm’s growth until he retired in 1992.

He is a director of the U.S. Naval Academy Foundation, Indiana University Foundation, the Conservation Law Center, the Sierra Club Foundation (former chair), and advising director of the IU School of Public & Environmental Affairs. He has been a director of many civic corporations including the Indianapolis Economic Club, the Indianapolis and Indiana Chambers of Commerce, Chief Executives Organization, Inc., the World Presidents’ Organization, and the Indianapolis Committee on Foreign Relations.

McKinney served on the IU Board of Trustees from 1989 to 1998 and was president from 1993 to 1994. He was chairman of the Board of Advisors of IUPUI and was formerly a director and chairman of the Board of Trustees of Marian College.

McKinney has been active in the American, Indiana, and Indianapolis Bar Associations, serving as a director of the Young Lawyers Section of the ABA, a director of the Indiana State Bar, and treasurer and director of the Indianapolis Bar Association. He has received Honorary Doctorates of Law from Marian College in 1976 and Butler University in 1981. McKinney is the 1994 recipient of the Junior Achievement Central Indiana Business Hall of Fame Award, a 1995 recipient of the Hoosier Heritage Award, a 1999 recipient of the IU Academy of Law Alumni Fellows Award, and the 2000 recipient of the Indianapolis Archdiocese Spirit of Service Award.
A Focus on Faculty

Professors Michael Pitts, Peter Prescott, and Max Huffman share a collegial moment while walking on campus.
Our exceptional and dedicated faculty members are committed to excellent teaching, research, and service to the profession and community. Their diverse academic backgrounds allow them to offer a rich curriculum covering a wide range of subjects. Law school faculty members regularly publish books, law review articles, essays, book chapters, and book reviews. Our nearly 50 full-time professors are joined each year by visiting and adjunct professors, many of whom are practicing attorneys, creating a team of scholars and practitioners who provide first-rate, comprehensive education for all of our students.

In the next two years, the school will be adding several new faculty positions, enabling us to have smaller classes and providing students with more individualized attention. Three outstanding individuals with proven track records have accepted our offers to join the faculty next year, and we expect to add to that list. The future of the faculty looks very bright indeed.

This issue of the magazine focuses on several of our outstanding faculty and outlines their many accomplishments. In future issues, we hope to spotlight faculty members on a regular basis so you can become better acquainted with them and their academic areas of interest.
Professor Gerard Magliocca Published Book, is Named Associate Dean for Research

Professor Gerard N. Magliocca has had a busy year. In April, his second book, The Tragedy of William Jennings Bryan: Constitutional Law and the Politics of Backlash, was published by Yale University Press. In July, he was named a Samuel R. Rosen Professor of Law, and in November, he was appointed Associate Dean for Research. In that capacity, Professor Magliocca will advise faculty on research and article placement, promote and market the scholarly output of the faculty, and organize scholarly presentations, by our faculty and by visitors from other schools as well.

As if that weren’t enough, Professor Magliocca is now working on his third book, a biography of John Bingham, author of the first section of the 14th Amendment to the United States Constitution. Titled “John Bingham: American Founding Son,” the book is slated for publication in 2013 by NYU Press. Bingham has never been the subject of a full-fledged biography before, Professor Magliocca said, and he believes it’s time for an examination of this individual who is such an important figure in constitutional law. Bingham also served as a prosecutor of the conspirators in Abraham Lincoln’s assassination, and was an ambassador to Japan.

Additionally, Professor Magliocca is at work on a paper titled “Constitutional Liability Rules.” He first presented the work, which examines different ways of protecting constitutional rights, at the Workshop in Political Theory and Policy Analysis in Bloomington in September. He also presented the paper at the law school for the Samuel R. Rosen Professorship Lecture on Nov. 8, 2011, in the Wynne Courtroom.

Professor Magliocca has been with the law school since 2001. He teaches Torts, Constitutional Law, Intellectual Property, Legal History, and Admiralty. He received his undergraduate degree from Stanford University and his J.D. from Yale Law School.

Professor Karen Bravo Named Associate Dean for International Affairs

Professor Karen E. Bravo, a well-known international law scholar and an expert in the study of human trafficking, has been named Associate Dean for International Affairs at the law school. She will collaborate with law school administration and faculty to identify and prioritize goals for international programs and initiatives, and to raise awareness of the school’s international initiatives among internal and external constituencies.

Professor Bravo, who hails from Jamaica, has lived and worked in four countries. In the Republic of Armenia she was a Rule of Law Liaison with the American Bar Association’s Central European and Eurasian Law Initiative. In Australia she worked with the Northern Land Council, an indigenous human rights non-governmental organization.

This past summer, Professor Bravo published two research articles on the subject of human trafficking. The first, “The Role of the Transatlantic Slave Trade in Contemporary Anti-Human Trafficking Discourse,” published in the Spring/Summer 2011 edition of the Seattle Journal for Social Justice, analyzed the usefulness of comparing human trafficking with transatlantic slavery. She found that, as used in mass media, the political and policy spheres, and by some scholars, the comparison to transatlantic slavery is too superficial and requires more analysis. The second article, titled “On Making Persons: Legal Constructions of Personhood and their Nexus with Human Trafficking,” was published in the summer 2011 edition of the Northern Illinois University Law Review. Professor Bravo identified, analyzed, and critiqued the mechanisms through which the legal system contributes to individual and group vulnerability to exploitation, including human trafficking.

Professor Bravo is a John S. Grimes Fellow, and Dean’s Fellow, and joined the faculty in 2004. She teaches International Business Transactions, International Law, International Trade, Closely Held Business Organizations, and a research seminar: Illicit International Markets. She received her undergraduate degree with honors from The University of the West Indies, her J.D. from Columbia University School of Law, and her LL.M. from New York University School of Law.
Center for Intellectual Property Law and Innovation Hosts an Array of Events

The law school’s Center for Intellectual Property Law and Innovation hosted a variety of events in September and October, starting with its IP Luncheon Speaker Series, which takes place at the center’s Canal Walk office. The series gives students the opportunity to hear from and interact with IP professionals from the local community, many of whom are alumni of the law school. This Fall, the center launched the series on August 30, when Robert E. Lee, Jr., ’80, spoke to a gathering of students about trademark practice in a multinational, regulated environment. Lee, the Assistant General Patent Counsel for Patents, Trademarks and Copyright at Eli Lilly and Company, has decades of experience protecting and enforcing intellectual property rights.

Cedric D’Hue, ’05, spoke on October 5 on “Financial Considerations with Starting Your Own Law Firm.” D’Hue started a law firm in 2009 after working as a patent attorney for Baker & Daniels for four years. He is currently Of Counsel with Bingham McHale, LLP, where he specializes in intellectual property (patents, trademarks, and copyrights), and general business advice and counsel. D’Hue has worked on patent prosecution and patentability analysis, including preparing and prosecuting patents related to chemical and mechanical devices.

Amie Peele Carter, a partner at Baker & Daniels, spoke on November 10. Peele, who had spoken at an IP CLE program in September, was “back by popular demand” for a presentation to students as part of the Luncheon Speaker Series. Her talk, “How to Prepare for a Sports Law Practice While Still in Law School,” gave students practical advice on career planning. She encouraged them to spend time thinking about what interests them outside of law school, and consider how that may translate into a legal career.

CLE Program: From Tight Ends and Trademarks to Scorecards and Social Media—The Importance of Branding in Contemporary Sports

The IP Center hosted a continuing legal education program on September 27. Executive Director of the center and adjunct professor, John Schaibley, welcomed attendees to the evening program entitled “From Tight Ends and Trademarks to Scorecards and Social Media—The Importance of Branding in Contemporary Sports,” featuring Ken Unger and Amie Peele Carter. Carter is a member of Baker & Daniels’ trademark, copyright and e-commerce group of the intellectual property practice, representing clients ranging from entrepreneurs to international organizations. She is also an active member of the firm’s sports and entertainment practice team devoting much of her time to representing artists, musicians and sports organizations. Unger serves as President of the sports marketing agency, U/S Sports Advisors. He is also the author of the book, Ahead of the Game: What Every Athlete Needs to Know About Sports Business.

Receptions. The IP Center hosted two receptions in September. On September 8, Professor Schaibley, Adjunct Professor Kenan Farrell, ’03, and Assistant Dean Patricia Kinney, ’02, were presented with awards from the Fashion Art & Design Law Society in celebration of the addition of a new course related to art law. Additionally, Rob Day, the illustrator who created the art work that is used in many IP Center brochures, was recognized at the reception.

On September 15, the center hosted the inaugural IP in-house Counsel Reception. In-house counsel from throughout Central Indiana attended the informal reception that created an enjoyable opportunity for idea exchange, benchmarking, and networking. It also gave attendees a chance to become more familiar with the activities and initiatives of the center.

Professor Wilson’s International Efforts Link School to China and Brazil

In summer 2012, students from Sun Yat-sen University Law School will travel outside China for that school’s first summer study abroad program, and their destination will be IU Robert H. McKinney School of Law. Professor Tom Wilson met with Sun Yat-sen officials on October 11, 2011, in Guangzhou, China, to finalize the plans.

Professor Wilson met with Sun Yat-sen University Law School Vice-Dean Li Zhiping, Director of Career Development Wang Yi, and Dean’s Assistant for International Programs Zheng Liwei, regarding plans for the summer visit to the law school. Also involved in the discussion was Vice Dean Huang Yao, who is currently in residence at Cambridge University.

The meeting was followed by a signing ceremony at which Professor Wilson and Sun Yat-sen Law School Dean Xu Zhongming executed a partnership agreement between the schools. The agreement calls for Sun Yat-sen law students to come to the McKinney School of Law for three weeks, where they will receive classroom instruction and participate in law-related and cultural field trips. Two weeks will be spent in Indianapolis, and one week will be spent in Washington, D.C. Sun Yat-sen University Law School expects 30 to 40 students to enroll in the inaugural program.

It wasn’t Professor Wilson’s only trip to China of late. He led students from the law school and nine other schools in the second International Forum for Law Students, held on June 5, 2011, at Renmin University of China Law School in Beijing. It would be one of three events he took part in while in China last summer.

“Pro Bono, Experiential Learning & the Law School Curriculum,” was a forum initiated in 2010 by Professor Wilson and Renmin University law professor Ding Xiangshun, LL.M. ’06. The forum provided a platform for law students from China and the United States to express their ideas for improving legal education. Students prepared papers to present to an audience of professors, graduate students, and peers, and a panel of experts offered comments on each presentation. The papers will be published in China later this year in a book edited by Professor Ding. The forum was sponsored by the Comparative Law Program at Renmin University of China Law School and the Joint Center for Asian Law Studies, a partnership of Renmin University and the law school.

Professor Wilson also was invited to speak at the International Forum on Judicial Training, held June 8 and 9, 2011, in Beijing. The forum was sponsored by the National Judges College of the Peoples Republic of China, the United Nations Development Program – China, and the European Union – China Project of Governance for Equitable Development. The forum was convened to enable China to analyze its judicial training procedures and to learn about methods used in other nations to train judges and maintain judicial competence.

Professor Wilson also directed the second Sino-U.S. Law Conference, held June 11, 2011, at Renmin University of China Law
The Brazil program included visits to:

- the United States District Court for the Southern District of Indiana, where FAESA participants met with Judges Sarah Evans Barker and William T. Lawrence, J.D. ’73, who talked about the role of federal courts in a federalist system,
- the Indiana Supreme Court, where Justice Frank Sullivan talked about the state court system,
- the Indiana Senate, where the group heard from Sen. Phil Boots and Sen. Brandt Hershman, second-year law student, about matters ranging from state government finance to the most pressing issues on the legislative agenda,
- the Office of the Indiana Attorney General, where Attorney General Greg Zoeller spoke about his duties and relationships with attorneys general in other states,
- the Baker & Daniels law firm, where Brita A. Horvath, J.D. ’02, spoke about pro bono and civic engagement activities undertaken by Indiana’s lawyers and specific initiatives involving the firm’s lawyers.
- Wabash College, where they met with students enrolled in a course on the culture and social issues of Brazil and spoke with students and faculty in an open forum.

Professor Wilson will host another group from FAESA in September 2012.
Orr and Watson Named Co-Directors of Clinical Programs

Clinical Professors of Law Joanne Orr and Frances Lee Watson, ’80, have been named Co-Directors of Clinical Programs at the law school.

“As co-directors we want to enable the clinical programs to continue to serve as one of the school’s core strengths, while increasing the clinical opportunities as a whole,” Professor Watson said. “Professor Orr and I are fortunate to work together as co-directors at a time when the legal profession and academic community are recognizing the importance of providing meaningful clinical learning opportunities to law students.”

The law school has a history of promoting clinical programs, social justice, and interdisciplinary education, the clinical program co-directors said. Current clinical program offerings include Appellate, Civil Practice, Criminal Defense, Disability, Immigration, Wrongful Conviction, and the new clinic for Health & Human Rights which started in the Fall 2011 semester.

As the economy continues to sputter, and job opportunities prove difficult to come by “law students appreciate hands-on legal education which achieves justice and the public good,” Professor Watson said. “Offering quality clinical legal education means teaching skills, judgment, and overall excellence in the practice of law.”

New Health and Human Rights Clinic Helps the Community

by Rebecca Collier Trimpe

Unraveling the problem started with a simple question: What’s causing the scars? The solution came when a family who didn’t know they had rights obtained legal representation from students and faculty at IU Robert H. McKinney School of Law and the new Health and Human Rights Clinic.

A 3-year-old toddler and his mother went to see the child’s pediatrician at Wishard Westside Community Health Center, where the doctor noticed the child was covered in tiny scars. Mom told the doctor about the bedbug problem in their rented home, and the doctor asked whether the family had notified their landlord about the infestation. The landlord said the bedbug problem was hers to resolve, and that he would sue the family if they tried to break the lease and move. The family didn’t know they had legal rights in this situation, so the doctor referred mom to the law school’s new clinic. Students and faculty were successful in getting the landlord to take care of the bedbug problem.

Addressing these kinds of issues is what the new law clinic is all about, said Clinical Professor of Law Fran Quigley, ’87, who is teaching the clinic with adjunct professor, Dea Lott, ‘08. It’s a legal-medical partnership between the law school and the Wishard health center, located just a few miles from the law school in Indianapolis’ Haughville neighborhood.
Beginning in early 2012, the Health and Human Rights Clinic at the Indiana University Robert H. McKinney School of Law will be inviting local attorneys to team with clinical faculty and students in providing pro bono representation to clients referred from its medical-legal partnership affiliate Wishard Westside Health Center. The Health and Human Rights Clinic faculty will provide attorney volunteers with free training, materials, and guidance as needed. If you are interested in learning more, please call 317-274-1911 or email gsmallwo@iupui.edu and check the law school’s Facebook page for updated information.

Law students and faculty receive referrals from physicians and social workers at the health center, which serves the ethnically diverse neighborhood’s low-income residents, many of whom don’t know they have legal rights that if addressed can have a direct impact on their quality of life. It’s critical to address the social deterrents to good health—rights to safe housing, access to health care, and personal safety, among others, Professor Quigley said.

“It’s health law in its broadest sense,” Professor Quigley said. This side of the practice is also something health law attorneys don’t often get a chance to see, he said.

The Health and Human Rights clinic had a direct impact on a family in danger of losing their home. Their doctor asked the family about their housing situation, and then referred them to the legal clinic. They had purchased a home on a rent-to-own contract with a hefty down payment. They made payments faithfully for five years, according to the contract’s terms, but the owner refused to honor the contract and tried to evict the family so he could rent to others. They had tried to hire a lawyer but couldn’t afford one. The law clinic students and faculty stepped in and saw to it that their legal rights were protected.

Legal clinic staff members work with health center staff on training, and there are posters throughout the health center in English and Spanish alerting the health center's clients about where they can go to get their legal needs met.

The legal clinic’s 10 students have seen more than 50 clients so far. Professor Quigley is aiming for 20 students for the spring semester, maybe more.

A longtime legal services lawyer, Professor Quigley, ’87, is senior advisor to the IU Center for Global Health, where he works with AMPATH and Legal Aid Centre of Eldoret (LACE) programs in Kenya. He’s also starting to do some work in Haiti that he’d like to tie into the new law clinic at some point in the future. He’s also worked as executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union of Indiana. He said the work at the Health and Human Rights Clinic has shown him that there are a number of legal services cases that never make it downtown to legal services offices because people don’t know they have rights, or that there is anyone willing and able to help them.

The clinic students also are able to do what Professor Quigley calls “preventive lawyering,” which means helping people before their cases reach crisis levels—before the home is in foreclosure or the child is covered in bedbug scars.

Clinical Professor of Law Fran Quigley appreciates the chance to teach students the benefits of “preventive lawyering.”
Program in International Human Rights Law Earns U.N. Special Consultative Status

The Program in International Human Rights Law at the law school has been awarded “Special Consultative Status” by the United Nations Economic and Social Council. The UN Committee on Non-Governmental Organizations made the referral in May, and the official designation was announced on July 25.

The accreditation process began in 2006, and now PIHRL joins a select group of about 2,000 organizations from 200 countries to carry that designation. The program was founded by Professor George E. Edwards, and Perfecto “Boyet” Caparas, LL.M. ’05, serves as program manager.

Professor Edwards is the “Main Representative” to United Nation World Headquarters in New York, as well as the “Main Representative” to the UN European Headquarters in Geneva. Caparas is the PIHRL “Main Representative” to UN Headquarters in Vienna. He also is accredited to the UN in New York and the UN in Geneva as PIHRL “Additional Representative.”

Founded in 1997, PIHRL’s projects include numerous “shadow reports” to the UN, which are detailed and documented descriptions of human rights violations in different countries or related to a specific subject matter. The reports have tackled a variety of issues including freedom of expression in Zambia, discrimination based on caste in Nepal, discrimination against women in Chad and Australia, sexual orientation discrimination in the U.S. and Chile, and indigenous rights in Panama, among other topics. Students also have traveled to the UN in Geneva and New York, disseminated shadow reports within the UN system, and given presentations on the reports on the floor of official UN proceedings.

This new status for the program can have a significant impact on the future for law students. “With this, we hope to see more aspiring lawyers and human rights defenders trailblazing, assuming leadership roles, and making a real life impact and difference in the field of international human rights law and its broad cross-section of various other important disciplines, notably environmental protection and climate change,” said Caparas.
Professor Edwards said, “This is the equivalent of the UN telling the PIHRL, ‘We have vetted your organization extensively and have determined that you and your members possess special expertise. We trust you and your expertise.’ The UN is telling us we can freely provide them with research, position papers, reports, and briefs in written form. We can also participate in making speeches or ‘interventions’ on the floor at UN proceedings.”

PIHRL began sending student interns to work at the UN the same year the program started. During the 2010-2011 academic year, a record number of seven current and former interns were working at the UN in various sites around the world.

The European debut for the 624-page LL.M. Roadmap was in Paris on September 26, 2011. The event was an “LL.M. Workshop” sponsored by the U.S. Department of State/Franco-American Commission, along with the Fulbright Commission.

Professor Edwards says, “The LL.M. Roadmap is a comprehensive guide to assist students from around the world in choosing, applying to, and succeeding in an American LL.M. program, and to assist them in reaching their personal, professional and career goals upon graduation.”

Meredith McQuaid, president and chair of the board of directors, NAFSA – Association of International Educators wrote, “LL.M. Roadmap….will motivate law schools to reflect critically on the LL.M. programs they offer.”

Professor Edwards, the Carl M. Gray Professor of Law, established and supervised the law school’s LL.M. track in International Human Rights Law from its inception until the spring of 2011. He is also the former executive chair of graduate programs at the school. In July 2011, Professor Edwards was named a Fellow of the American Bar Foundation.

Professor Edwards is affiliated faculty of the Center for the Study of Global Change at Indiana University in Bloomington, and has received numerous teaching, research and civic engagement awards. He has presented on the topic of US legal education for international students and other international issues in over two dozen countries.

Professor Edwards is donating all of his profits from this edition of the LL.M. Roadmap to the International Law Students Association, which is the parent organization of International Law Societies at law schools across the U.S.

“I encourage all LL.M. applicants to read through the book’s list of 218 criteria for choosing a school or LL.M. program, decide which criteria are important to them as a student, and choose a school they believe is reasonably likely to satisfy or meet those criteria,” said Professor Edwards.

AT A TIME WHEN ISSUES OF HEALTH CARE REFORM DOMINATE THE HEADLINES, the law school's Hall Center for Law and Health has launched a major initiative in biomedical and health industry compliance law. The Inaugural Biomedical and Health Industry Law and Compliance Conference on September 21 drew a crowd of over 200 attendees to the event which focused on emerging compliance trends; fraud, abuse and enforcement; pharmaceutical and manufacturing issues.

The new initiative offers expanded course offerings, including clinical opportunities, in the compliance field, and, beginning in 2012, will offer a certificate program in health law with a specialty in biomedical and health industry compliance law. The certificate is offered within the existing J.D. health law curriculum and the existing LL.M. track in Health Law, Policy and Bioethics.

Dean Gary R. Roberts said, “The school has the expertise to provide outstanding education to the growing group of health lawyers and professionals pursuing careers in health care compliance law.”

At the conference, NBC journalist Jonathan Alter spoke on political and health law related issues, and Joyce R. Branda, Director of the Fraud Section of the Commercial Litigation Branch at the U.S. Department of Justice, gave the morning keynote on “Health Care Reform and Health Care Fraud Enforcement.” Branda supervises civil fraud matters and federal litigation under the False Claims Act and other laws. She has lectured extensively and appeared on panels on health care fraud, procurement fraud and on the False Claims Act and civil enforcement.

A variety of experts from the government, private sector, as well as academia participated in panel discussions on topical issues. The panel on “Emerging Trends in Compliance,” featured

Hall Center Welcomes Health Law Expert Nicolas Terry to Its Ranks

The law school is honored to announce that Professor Nicolas P. Terry will become co-director of the Hall center for Law and Health in January of 2012. Terry has been the Chester A. Myers Professor of Law at Saint Louis University (SLU) School of Law, where he taught Torts, Products Liability, Health Information Technology, Law & Science, and Health Care Quality. Terry, who co-directed SLU's top-ranked Center for Health Law Studies from 2000-2008, will lead the law school's program here in Indianapolis along with Professor David Orentlicher, who joined the Center in 1995.

“We could not have asked for a more qualified addition to our health law credentials. Professor Terry is universally known and respected in the field of health law and will increase the national prominence our Hall Center enjoys,” says the IU Robert H. McKinney School of Law Dean, Gary R. Roberts. “We look forward to welcoming him to our law school family.”

A British native, Terry was educated at Kingston University and the University of Cambridge, and first taught at the University of Exeter in England. He served as a Senior Fellow at Melbourne Law School and has visited at the law schools of Santa Clara University, the University of Missouri-Columbia, Washington University, and the University of Iowa. From 2008-10 Terry served as SLU’s Senior Associate Dean. His research focuses primarily on the intersection of medicine, law, and information technology.

Terry replaces Professor Eleanor DeArman Kinney who retired from Indiana University in June of 2011 after founding and leading the Hall Center for Law and Health for 24 years.
Mary Beth Claus, Deputy Chief Legal Officer, Cleveland Clinic; David Douglas, Partner, Shook, Hardy & Bacon, Washington, D.C.; Norm Tabler, Executive Vice-President & General Counsel, Chief Compliance Officer, IU Health; Jim Utterback, Senior Compliance Counsel, GE Healthcare—Americas; and Robert Wade, Partner, Krieg DeVault. At another session, “Issues of Fraud and Abuse,” were discussed by Linda Baumann, Partner, Arent Fox, Washington, D.C.; Jim Shaheen, Former Medicaid Inspector General, Office of New York State and Alan Pope, Medicaid Director, Office of the Attorney General of Indiana.

Alice King, Senior Consultant at Towers Watson in Dallas, Texas spoke on “Accountable Care Organizations,” and Ralph Hall, Visiting Professor from the University of Minnesota School of Law spoke on “Advertising and Promotion.”

A panel examining “Health Care—Life Sciences Business Relationships” brought together Tom Hutchinson, Partner, Krieg DeVault; Clarice McCauley, Director, Corporate Compliance, Roche Diagnostics; and Dr. Eric Potts, Goodman Campbell. “HIPAA Privacy and Data Sharing,” was the topic of the panel featuring Adrianne E. Siefert, General Counsel & Compliance Officer, Regenstrief Institute, Inc.; Eric Thieme, General Counsel and Compliance Officer, Indiana Health Information Exchange, Inc.; and Joy Pritts, Chief Privacy Officer, Office of the National Coordinator for Health IT, Washington, D.C. The final session of the day dealt with “Auditing, Investigations and Enforcement and the Theory or Strategy Behind Them.” Erin Lewis, Counsel, Baker & Daniels; Rob Banter, Auditor, Office of the Indiana Attorney General, Medicaid Fraud Control Unit; and Shelese Woods, Assistant United States Attorney, Southern District of Indiana, were the featured panelists.

Professor Emeritus and former co-director of the Hall Center, Eleanor DeArman Kinney was honored at a reception in the Courtyard Atrium following the conference. It was also announced that the annual conference will henceforth be named for Professor Kinney.
THE IU ROBERT H. MCKINNEY SCHOOL OF LAW NOW OFFERS A NEW CONCENTRATION IN ENVIRONMENTAL AND NATURAL RESOURCES LAW (ENR) for eligible J.D. graduates. Students completing the concentration will study legal frameworks for managing environmental and natural resource challenges facing policymakers, businesses, and the public—the same challenges that are featured in headlines and in public policy debates on a daily basis.

The ENR Concentration will serve as a gateway for students wishing to work in the growing fields of environmental or natural resources law as well as those interested in future work concerning property law, real estate development and transactions, corporate acquisitions, land use, energy policy or regulation, urban planning, transportation, agriculture, conservation, public health, or occupational safety. The concentration also will benefit students interested more generally in public policy, public interest advocacy, or government at the local, state, national, or international level.

“It is difficult to imagine a more compelling issue facing our country—indeed our planet—than the question of how to protect human life and conserve vital resources even as we secure long-term prosperity,” noted Professor Eric Dannenmaier, who directs the school’s ENR Program. “Managing development in a way that balances economic growth with broader societal needs is a complex and critical task, and it is at the heart of environmental and natural resources law. The new ENR Concentration recognizes our school’s commitment to preparing our students to address these difficult issues. The concentration provides academic grounding and analytical tools necessary to compete and lead effectively whether our graduates work at the state, local, national, or international level.”

A new course in Agricultural Law and the Environment also is being offered in the spring semester, 2012, and new courses on Environmental Justice and Environmental Compliance and Enforcement are in the planning stages for the 2012-13 academic year.

A Concentration in Environmental and Natural Resources Law will be awarded to J.D. candidates who complete at least six approved courses totaling at least 15 credit hours in Environmental and Natural Resource Law and closely-related subjects while maintaining a minimum grade point average of 3.0.

Courses that meet the ENR requirement include:
- Environmental Law
- Natural Resources Law
- Administrative Law
- Animals and the Law
- Climate Law and Policy
- Energy Law and Regulation
- International Environmental Law
- Land Use
- Toxic Tort and Environmental Law
- Utility Law
- Water Law

In addition, ENR Concentration students will complete a research or experiential “capstone course” that may include externships, law and state government placements, supervised research, and advanced field research. Full details on the concentration can be found on the school’s website at http://indylaw.indiana.edu/programs/ENR/Concentration.htm

The ENR Concentration is one part of the law school’s broader ENR Program, which is a curricular and co-curricular program designed to prepare students for practice in the private sector, government, and public interest organizations. The ENR Program is an important and growing part of the school’s educational mission. More information is available at http://indylaw.indiana.edu/programs/ENR/
Thousands of fans were streaming into downtown Indianapolis for the Super Bowl, and since the scene was February in Indiana, a severe winter storm was predicted to dump an inch of freezing rain and four to 14 inches of snow on the central part of the state.
EVEN WITHOUT A TERRORIST ATTACK, THE SCENE AT THE SUPER BOWL WOULD BE ENOUGH TO TRY THE CRITICAL THINKING SKILLS OF THE MOST SEASONED PUBLIC OFFICIAL OR EMERGENCY RESPONSE WORKER. But then the simulation’s mayhem began: a train derailed on the bridge over Washington Street at Harding Street, and tanker cars were leaking chlorine, contaminating water and causing people nearby to have difficulty breathing. People were ordered to evacuate the vicinity, but determined football fans either didn’t get the warning or ignored it and continued to pile into downtown for pre-game festivities. About 90 minutes after the train derailment, a car bomb exploded, killing people and leaving many others with severe injuries.

That was the scenario for this year’s counter-terrorism simulation, part of the “Testing Local Readiness in a Time of Terror” program on Oct. 27 and 28, at the law school. Eighteen students from Professor Shawn Boyne’s Seminar in Comparative National Security Law played roles during the exercise. A total of 38 students from the School of Public and Environmental Affairs (SPEA) at IUPUI played roles in the exercise or attended the panel discussions that were part of the symposium. The event was part of the Global Crisis Leadership Forum (GCLF), a partnership of the law school and SPEA. The simulation was sponsored by the law school, SPEA, and the Indiana Department of Homeland Security.

News anchor Scott Sander from WISH-TV in Indianapolis provided the “breaking news” during the simulation as he did during the inaugural simulation exercise in 2009. But this year the media involvement wasn’t limited to taped news segments. Students also had to cope with being bombarded with reporters’ questions during press conferences in the Conour Atrium, courtesy of reporters Ruthanne Gordon, also from WISH, and Russ McQuaid from WXIN-TV. They provided students with a real-world taste of what it’s like to face questions at a press conference. Also new this year, Indianapolis-area media covered the event live.

Dealing with an unruly press corps was just one of the new elements of this year’s exercise, according to Professor Boyne, associate professor of law and the chair of the GCLF. The private sector also was involved in this event—the Pacers and National Football League’s security consultants, in addition to business leaders, took part in the simulation. Students were evaluated using Homeland Security Exercise Protocol, the same performance standards used by the federal government. Security professionals served as observers and facilitators and gave students feedback on how they were doing throughout the morning.

The focus of this year’s simulation was the Mayor’s Office, reflecting the public security maxim that “all events are local,” said Professor Boyne. “The students in the Mayor’s Office in particular proved that they were up to the task,” she said. “That office was the hot seat of the simulation and the students never wavered under pressure.”

Students did feel the pressure, said Traci Tetrick, the third-year law student from Plainfield who portrayed the mayor. “I was most caught off-guard by the level of initial anxiety caused by the simulation. Walking out to give my first press conference—parts of which had already been drafted in the event of such an attack—I was momentarily overwhelmed by the presence of real press and real cameras.”

By Rebecca Collier Trimpe
Tetrick also noted that Professor Boyne “devoted a full class session to governmental unit meetings. Meeting and planning with my local team members (fellow students Megan Smither, Cassie Nielsen, Robert Anderson, and Marti Showers) gave me the confidence I needed to know that I could trust the local team in the midst of chaos.” This group continued to prove its worth as the simulation unfolded, she said, noting that the team decided to protect her from added stress by not telling her that a death threat against the mayor had been phoned in following a press conference.

Anthony Green, ’04, Deputy Commissioner and General Counsel at the Indiana Department of Administration and an adjunct professor who teaches National Security Law at the law school, thought students did well responding to the “fog and friction,” a term typically used to describe the need to respond to a variety of different scenarios unfolding at the same time.

Dr. William A. Foley, Jr., SPEA lecturer at IUPUI and that school’s co-chair of the GCLF, said the exercise was specifically designed this year to include more “injects,” which he described as “further problems arising from the cascading effects of an incident of national significance—which when injected into exercise play—cause the person receiving the information to respond immediately in the role he or she is playing.”

Law student Bobby Courtney, Director of Policy and Planning for MESH Coalition, (a public-private coalition related to emergency response) took part as a facilitator. He said students responded as anyone would who was taking part in such an exercise.

Students also had to cope with being bombarded with reporters’ questions during press conferences in the Conour Atrium, courtesy of reporters Ruthanne Gordon from WISH-TV, and Russ McQuaid from WXIN-TV. conference where the leader is expected to relay information to a wide audience. Allen said he was glad he was able to take part in the exercise, and sees the value of this type of cross-collaboration among schools.

Jim White, a public safety lecturer at SPEA and another of that school’s co-chairs for GCLF, also believes the collaboration between the schools is valuable for more than the schools alone. “The hope is to leverage this year’s exercise and coalition building into a true partnership which allows us (IUPUI, law school, and SPEA) not only to train students but to train members of the public safety community and the private sector as well. A failure to seize this initiative would be foolhardy,” he said.

The event was a learning opportunity for more than students, said Joseph Wainscott, Jr., Executive Director of the Indiana Department of Homeland Security.

He also thought the students performed well, and said “I hope they look at public safety as one of those avenues they want to get involved with in the future.”

Beadle and Hamilton Lectures, along with Panel Discussions, Highlighted the Program

1– On Thursday, October 27, Nicholas Beadle, CMG, United Kingdom National Security Council, Cabinet Office, London, gave a keynote address, “The Legality of NATO’s Intervention in Libya.”

2– Lee Hamilton, Director of the Center on Congress at Indiana University, delivered the Friday keynote lecture on October 28, “A Status Report on Homeland Security Since 9/11.”

4– A panel discussion on “The Legality and Wisdom of Armed Intervention in Libya,” took place following the simulation. The panel was moderated by Professor Karen Bravo and included panelists J. Nicholas Beadle, CMG, UK National Security Council; Professor Marjorie Cohn, Thomas Jefferson School of Law; David Cortright, Director of Policy Studies, Notre Dame Kroc Institute for International Peace studies; Dr. Steven Metz, Chairman, Regional Strategy Department, Strategic Studies Institute, U.S. Army War College.

5 – A second panel discussion on “The Challenge of Coordinating Local Response,” featured Peter S. Beering, ’86, as moderator, and included Dr. Abdul-Akeem Sadiq, IU School of Public and Environmental Affairs; Joseph E. Wainscott, Executive Director, Indiana Department of Homeland Security; Greg Massa, Supervisory Special Agent, Joint Terrorism Task Force, Indiana; and Jim Cutrell, Deputy Chief, Public Safety Communications, Indianapolis Department of Public Safety.
2011 Evening of Celebration

On Friday, May 13, law school reunion classes celebrated with soon-to-be graduates and prospective students at the annual Evening of Celebration, which took place in the Conour Atrium at Inlow Hall. Two graduates, Emily Benfer, ‘05, and Sean Monkhouse, ‘06, received Early Career Achievement Awards, while three individuals, John Maley, ‘88, Susanah Mead, ‘76, and Stephen Stitle, ‘70, received Distinguished Alumni Awards. The evening included a special toast to the graduating class of 2011.
Emily Benfer, ‘05 Early Career Achievement Award  After earning her undergraduate degree, Emily Benfer spent two years in the Peace Corps, which took her to Zimbabwe, Belize and Thailand. She also worked as a law clerk at the New Haven Legal Assistance Association, Inc., which led her to the study of law. She received her J.D., cum laude, in 2005, and was an editor on the Indiana International and Comparative Law Review. She also served on the Order of the Barristers, and was president of Equal Justice Works, both locally and nationally. During law school, she clerked for Judge David Hamilton, the Lawyers’ Committee for Civil Rights, the Indiana Protective Order Pro Bono Project, and the Washington Legal Clinic for the Homeless. In 2008, Benfer was awarded the Equal Justice Works Martindale Hubbell Exemplary Public Service Award. While in Washington, D.C., she received an Arnold and Porter Equal Justice Works Fellowship. Additionally, she received the Judy M. Weightman Memorial Public Interest Award from the ABA. She is a Clinical Professor of Law and Director of the Health Justice Project at the Loyola University Chicago School of Law.

Sean Monkhouse, ’06 Early Career Achievement Award  Originally from Terre Haute, Indiana, Sean Monkhouse, ’06, earned his undergraduate degree from IUPUI in 1996. As a law student, Monkhouse travelled to the Netherlands in 2005 for an internship working with a legal team on an important human rights case dealing with the former Yugoslavian dictator, Slobodan Milosevic. The internship, through the law school’s Program in International Human Rights Law (PIHRL), turned into a permanent position as a court officer for the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (ICTY). The ICTY, part of the United Nations (along with the nearby World Court, based in the Peace Palace), deals with crimes involving the countries that once made up Yugoslavia. Monkhouse has continued to serve the law school by mentoring interns from the PIHRL program placed at the ICTY office.
John Maley, ‘88 Distinguished Alumni Award

In the letter nominating John Maley for the Distinguished Alumni Award, he was described as “an excellent example of what all lawyers should aspire to be—as mentors, leaders, business owners, and fathers.” A partner in Barnes & Thornburg LLP’s Indianapolis office, he received his B.A. from the University of Notre Dame and M.B.A. from Indiana University. In 1988 he earned the J.D. summa cum laude, from the law school, where he was executive editor of the Indiana Law Review. From 1988 to 1990 he clerked for the Honorable Larry J. McKinney in U.S. District Court in Indianapolis.

Maley has a long record of service to the school. He has served on the alumni association board of directors, including a term as president in 1998. An adjunct professor at the law school for many years, in 2003 he was chosen as a recipient of the Maynard K. Hine Award in recognition of his outstanding service to the IUPUI campus.

A past-president of the Indianapolis Bar Association, Maley has published numerous articles on federal practice, is the author of the Appellate Handbook for Indiana Lawyers, and lectures frequently on federal civil practice, noncompetition, and employment matters.

His many civic activities include service as chair of the Local Rules Committee, S.D. of Indiana, chair of the Marion County Local Rules Committee, president of the Indianapolis Chapter of the Federal Bar Association, and chair of the Indiana State Bar Association’s Appellate Practice Section. He is a fellow of the Indianapolis and Indiana State Bar Associations.

Susanah M. Mead, ‘76 Distinguished Alumni Award

Educator, professional, trailblazer, are just a few of the many words that describe Susanah Mead. A 1976 graduate of the law school, Professor Mead joined the faculty in 1978 as a lecturer in the legal writing program, becoming the program’s director in 1980. She later became one of the first tenured female law professors at the law school, teaching products liability and torts. In 1997, Dean Norman Lefstein selected Professor Mead to be the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs. She worked collaboratively with Dean Lefstein on leading the law school through an ambitious capital campaign that resulted in the construction of Lawrence W. Inlow Hall.

Her dedication and service to the law school was demonstrated in 2005 when the Chancellor of IUPUI, Charles Bantz, appointed Professor Mead as Interim Dean of the school. She served in that post for two years. As one of her many supporters wrote in her award nomination letter, “From 2005-2007, Susie fearlessly led the law school through an extremely challenging transition and difficult financial period, paving the way for the school to continue to grow and succeed.”

Professor Mead has served as chair of the Indiana State Bar Association’s Conclave on Legal Education, on the advisory committee for the IUPUI master plan, and in 2009 was named a Distinguished Barrister by the Indiana Lawyer. In 2007, she received the law school’s Alumna of the Year Award. In June of 2011, Susanah Mead retired after 33 remarkable years of teaching and serving the school.

Stephen A. Stitle,’70 Distinguished Alumni Award

Stephen A. Stitle is regional president for PNC Bank, Indiana. He previously served as president of National City Bank in Indiana and executive vice president of National City Corporation. Prior to joining National City, Stitle served in a variety of executive positions for Eli Lilly and Company for nearly 25 years.

Stitle’s exemplary civic involvement encompasses a wide array of community organizations. He currently serves on the boards of directors for the Central Indiana Corporate Partnership, Center for Leadership Development, Indiana Chamber of Commerce, Greater Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce, Indiana University Foundation, St. Vincent’s Heart Center of Indiana, Greater Indianapolis Progress Committee, Pacers Foundation, Inc., United States Auto Club, Simon Youth Foundation, and Sagamore Institute for Policy Research. He is the former chairman of the board of directors of the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce and served on the board of trustees of DePauw University.

One of his many award nominators described Stitle, “Whether in his profession as an intelligent, knowledgeable, highly respected banker, or in his community role as a leader, philanthropist, and supporter of countless non-profit organizations, Steve is a winner.”

Stitle has served on the law school’s Board of Visitors for many years and he has volunteered annually for the law school’s mock interview program since its inception in 2006.

Stitle received a bachelor of arts degree in political science and economics from IU in 1967 and was awarded the J.D., cum laude, from the law school in 1970.
The law school also recognized its second S.J.D. degree recipient, Dr. Giancarlo Panagia. Faculty hooders, chosen by the student body, included Professor Frank Emmert (hooding S.J.D. and LL.M. graduates) and Professors George E. Edwards and Lloyd T. Wilson, Jr. for the LL.M. graduates. Professors Eric Dannenmaier, Andrew Klein, Michael Pitts and Florence Wagman Roisman hooded the J.D. graduates. The student speakers were Jonathan Bashi (LL.M. Division), Jeff Elftman (Full-time J.D. Division), and Alex Schmitt (Part-time J.D. Division). Vice Dean Paul Cox presented Katherine Mercer-Lawson with the Faculty Prize.

The law school was honored to have Vernon E. Jordan, Jr. deliver the commencement address. Jordan is a Senior Managing Director of Lazard Frères & Co., LLC., in New York. Prior to joining Lazard, he was a Senior Executive Partner with the law firm of Akin Gump Strauss Hauer & Feld, LLP, where he remains Senior Counsel. While there, he practiced general, corporate, legislative and international law in Washington, D.C. Before Akin Gump, Jordan was President and Chief Executive Officer of the National Urban League, Inc.; Executive Director of the United Negro College Fund, Inc.; Director of the Voter Education Project of the Southern Regional Council; Attorney-Consultant, U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity; Assistant to the Executive Director of the Southern Regional Council; Georgia Field Director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and an attorney in private practice in Arkansas and Georgia. His presidential appointments include: the President's Advisory Committee for the Points of Light Initiative Foundation; the Secretary of State’s Advisory Committee on South Africa; the Advisory Council on Social Security; the Presidential Clemency Board; the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission; the National Advisory Committee on Selective Service; and the Council of the White House Conference “To Fulfill These Rights.” In 1992, Jordan served as the Chairman of the Clinton Presidential Transition Team.

A graduate of DePauw University, Jordan earned his law degree at Howard University Law School. He holds honorary degrees from more than 60 colleges and universities in America. He is a member of the Bars of Arkansas, the District of Columbia, Georgia and the U.S. Supreme Court. He is a member of the American Bar Association, the National Bar Association, the Council on Foreign Relations and The Bilderberg Meetings. He is the author of Vernon Can Read! A Memoir (Public Affairs, 2001) and Make It Plain, Standing Up and Speaking Out (Public Affairs, 2008).

The law school’s LL.M. program in Cairo held its third annual commencement ceremony at 7pm on July 16, 2011. Seventy-nine students were certified to graduate at the ceremony that took place at the Dusit Thani Lakeview Cairo Hotel. Dean Gary R. Roberts gave welcoming remarks, and program director, Professor Frank Emmert, also provided a welcome.

The two commencement keynote speakers were Dr. Noha Bakr, Deputy Minister of International Cooperation, and Counselor Mostafa Al Behbeity, Deputy Minister of Justice and Head of International Cooperation Unit in Egypt. More than 600 distinguished guests, including representatives from the government of Egypt, USAID and the ABA, joined IU Dean Gary Roberts and Dean Mahmoud Kebeish of Cairo University, along with friends and family members of graduates, at the event. Additionally, the law school hosted an Evening of Celebration, also at the Dusit Thani Lakeview, on July 15, for the class of 2011 and program alumni.

In May of 2007, the law school signed a cooperative grant agreement with USAID Egypt and has been offering the only fully accredited on-site American Master of Laws (LL.M.) Program in the Middle East since January 2008. IU-Indianapolis professors travel to Cairo on a regular basis and teach the same courses they teach in Indianapolis, using the same books and syllabi that they use in the states. Courses are held to the same standards and the same exams are administered as well. Egyptian students who successfully complete 24 credits, including a Master thesis, receive the same IU diploma as the school’s LL.M. students in Indianapolis.

Most recently, 63 students entered the program in January 2011, bringing the total number of students (past and present) in the Egypt program to 225. Of that number, 128 have graduated and the remaining students are working toward degree completion. Many of the students are already accomplished legal professionals in Egypt. More than a dozen serve as judges on the Council of State (comparable to the U.S. Federal Appellate Courts). Many work in international law firms and multinational enterprises. About one third of the students are women.

“We are optimistic that the program in Egypt will continue and that the next group of students will be admitted soon,” said Professor Emmert.
THE LAW SCHOOL WELCOMED TWENTY NEW STUDENTS TO THE LL.M. PROGRAM IN AUGUST, 17 OF WHOM ARE INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS. With 10 students admitted to the program last January, total enrollment for 2011 climbed to 30 new students. Students enroll in one of four masters tracks: American Law for Foreign Lawyers; Health Law, Policy and Bioethics; International and Comparative Law; or Intellectual Property Law. The school’s new LL.M. students will benefit from the teaching of three prominent state officials who have recently agreed to teach in the program: Indiana Supreme Court Justices Steven David and Robert Rucker teaching Contracts and Torts, respectively, and Indiana Attorney General Greg Zoeller, teaching Constitutional Law.

In October, Professor Frank Emmert, John S. Grimes Professor of Law and Director of the Center for International and Comparative Law, and Azalea Assaf, LL.M candidate, visited Costa Rica to promote collaboration among universities, faculty exchanges, student exchanges and recruitment, and joint research.

Professor Emmert delivered a three-day international business law seminar at El Colegio de Abogados de Costa Rica, the national bar association, covering topics including international commercial transactions, basics of international contract law, the United Nations Convention on International Sale of Goods (CISG), as well as dispute settlement in foreign courts and via arbitration. Approximately 300 law students and attorneys attended the seminar.

U.S. Ambassador Anne Slaughter Andrew, ‘83, delivered the seminar’s keynote address, and graciously hosted a breakfast reception at her residence, attended by Costa Rican and U.S. government officials, prominent attorneys, and the deans of the law schools of Universidad de Costa Rica (UCR), Universidad Autonoma de Centroamerica (UACA) and Universidad Latinoamericana de Ciencia y Tecnologia (ULACIT). The breakfast provided an opportunity for discussion of potential partnerships with the IU Robert H. McKinney School of Law.

The Costa Rican Minister of Justice, Hernando París, invited Professor Emmert and Assaf to discuss Costa Rican priorities for ratification of international trade treaties after the country’s recent implementation of the United Nations Commission on International Trade Law (UNCITRAL) Model Code on International Commercial Arbitration and the ratification of a free trade agreement with China. Assaf was a guest on “Pasion por la Justicia,” a nationally syndicated radio program, where she discussed international alternative dispute resolution.

The trip concluded at ULACIT, where Professor Emmert lectured on World Trade Organization Law to students and discussed the potential for future collaboration with administrators. ULACIT teaches part of its LL.B. Program in English and there was significant interest among third and fourth year students in the IU McKinney School of Law LL.M. Program.

Law School for Journalists Takes Place at Law School

By Rebecca Collier Trimpe

INDIANA UNIVERSITY ROBERT H. MCKINNEY SCHOOL OF LAW WAS THE SITE FOR THIS YEAR’S LAW SCHOOL FOR JOURNALISTS, co-hosted by the Indiana Supreme Court and the law school, on July 20, 2011. About 60 people attended the all-day program, which was designed to help working media better understand the legal system.

The luncheon keynote speaker was Jerrianne Hayslett, former Los Angeles Superior Court Media Liaison and author of Anatomy of a Trial: Public Loss, Lessons Learned from ‘The People v. O.J. Simpson.’ Hayslett discussed her experiences in coordinating media logistics for numerous high-profile trials, including O.J. Simpson, Rodney King, Heidi Fleiss, and the Menendez brothers.

Participants were greeted by Indiana Supreme Court Chief Justice Randall T. Shepard, who also offered opening remarks. Sessions through the day included: “Problem-solving Courts—A New Approach to Justice,” presented by Mary Kay Hudson, Indiana Judicial Center Director of Court Services; Madison Superior Judge Dennis Carroll; and Vanderburgh Superior Judge Wayne Trockman; “Structure of Indiana Trial Courts,” presented by Hamilton Superior Judge Gail Bardach; and Senior Judge Barbara Harcourt, Court Personnel/Program Attorney at the Indiana Judicial Center; “Cost of Courts,” presented by Indiana Court of Appeals Judge John Baker; Professor John Krauss, director of the Indiana University Public Policy Institute; Jeff Wiese and Tom Carusillo, staff attorneys at the Division of State Court Administration; and Tracy Warner of the Fort Wayne Journal Gazette, and “20 Years With 6 Suspended and Credit For Time Served,” presented by Marion Superior Judge Robert Altice; Floyd Superior Judge Maria Granger; and Professor Joel Schumm of the law school.

Other presentations were “When Children Are in Court,” presented by Lake Superior Judge Mary Beth Bonaventura; and Scott Circuit Judge Roger Duvall and “Least Understood Area of The Law,” presented by Monica Foster; Greta Scodro, assistant administrator, Supreme Court Administration; Kyle Gillaspie, staff attorney, Indiana Court of Appeals; and Professor Shawn Boyne of the law school. Additionally, a presentation entitled “Online, On the Phone and In Person—Getting Court Information,” was presented by Kelly Lucas of the Indiana Lawyer, Kathryn Dolan, Indiana Supreme Court Public Information Officer; Harold Adams of the Louisville Courier-Journal, and Susan Brown of The Times of Northwest Indiana.
THIS YEAR’S 31ST LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS SEMINAR featured the law school’s own Dean Gary R. Roberts who gave a keynote address on “The Unique Labor Law Issues Involved in Collective Bargaining between Professional Sports Leagues & Player Unions,” a timely topic as the NFL’s labor negotiations were taking place at that time. Mark Gaston Pearce, National Labor Relations Board Member, was the other keynote speaker and his talk was entitled, “The NLRB Today: Upholding the Law in Changing Times: A Discussion of the National Labor Relations Act and its Relevance to Current Trends in Labor Management Relations.”

This year’s program theme was “Labor Law in the Age of Social Media” and featured presentations by experts on labor, management and arbitration issues from the government, private sector and academia. Seminar Steering Committee co-chairs, Professor Robert Brookins, and Rik Lineback from the NLRB, both served as presenters, as did fellow-committee members, Barry A. Macey, Frederick (“Rick”) Dennerline,’74, Ryan Poor, Richard Swanson, Michael H. Boldt, and Mary Jane Mitchell. In addition to Lineback and Mitchell, other NLRB faculty included Roberto G. Chavarry, Kim Sorg-Graves, Lori Ketcham, and Derek A. Johnson. Attorneys who volunteered their time to be faculty members included Steve Garrett, Todd M. Niermann, Donald S. Smith, ’81, Geoffrey S. Lohman, ’97, Travis P. Meek, ’05, Stephen W. Lyman, Aarika Mack-Brown, William T. (“Tuck”) Hopkins, Brian R. Garrison, David Williams, Marilyn L. Widman, Robert A. Hicks, Jan Michelsen, ’94, Anthony Alfano, Aarika Mack-Brown, Jonathan C. Bumgarner, and Steven Southwood. Commissioner Lori Torres, ’86 from the Indiana Department of Labor also shared her expertise during one breakout session.

The Labor-Management Relations Seminar seeks to bring together experts on both sides of current labor and employment law issues, as well as academics and neutral parties for the educational benefit of all. The proceeds of the seminar are awarded as scholarships to students of the IU Robert H. McKinney School of Law who express an interest in pursuing labor law as a career.
WITH A DIPLOMACY THAT CAN TYPICALLY ONLY BE ACHIEVED WITH THE PASSAGE OF TIME, a discussion at the law school titled “A Legal Retrospective on the Recent Unpleasantness at Conner Prairie,” addressed issues related to Conner Prairie’s becoming an independent entity in 2005. On September 12, the law school hosted a panel discussion in the Wynne Courtroom on this topic.

The panel included former Indiana Attorney General Steve Carter; Ellen M. Rosenthal, President and CEO of Conner Prairie Museum; Timothy L. Seiler, Ph.D., Director, Public Service and The Fundraising School at the Indiana University Center on Philanthropy; and Conner Prairie Museum board member and author Berkley W. Duck III. The program was moderated by law school Professor Rob Katz. Duck signed copies of his book Twilight at Conner Prairie: The Creation, Betrayal, and Rescue of a Museum, in the Conour Atrium following the panel presentation.

Discussion explored the law of charitable trusts and nonprofit organizations by analyzing the legal controversies that led to Conner Prairie Interactive History Park’s independence from Earlham College, its original trustee, in 2005. Topics included drafting and interpretation of charitable trust instruments, nonprofit governance, fiduciary duties, conflicts of interest, and the state attorney general’s role in supervising charitable trusts.

Conner Prairie offers museum goers a chance to step back into the past and explore what life was like in Indiana in the 1830s. Duck’s book follows the development of the museum, legal challenges presented by the terms of founder Eli Lilly’s gifts, and the breakdown of the relationship between the museum and its trustee, Earlham College. Duck, who served on Conner Prairie’s independent board of directors when the board and CEO were dismissed, provides an inside look at what he believes went wrong at Conner Prairie and how it was put to right.
AT THE JAMES P. WHITE LECTURE on Legal Education on September 13, 2011, former Chief Judge of the New York Court of Appeals, Judith Kaye, talked about her experiences as the first woman to lead that court.

Judge Kaye received her undergraduate degree from Barnard College in 1958 and her LL.B. degree from New York University School of Law in 1962, graduating cum laude. Immediately following law school, she entered private practice at Sullivan & Cromwell in New York City. From 1965 to 1969, while starting a family, she was part-time assistant to Dean Russell Niles of NYU School of Law. In 1969, she joined Olwine, Connelly, Chase, O'Donnell & Weyher as a litigation associate, and was later named partner.

In 1983, she was appointed by then-Governor Mario M. Cuomo to New York’s highest court, the Court of Appeals, becoming the first woman serve on that body. In 1993, Gov. Cuomo appointed her that court’s chief judge, making her the first woman to occupy that post. The only New York chief judge ever to complete a full 14-year term, she was re-appointed in 2007 to a term that ended Dec. 31, 2008, because of the state’s mandatory retirement provisions.

As chief judge, she led numerous initiatives to make the New York court system more efficient and responsive to the needs of all residents, including reform of the jury system/creating problem-solving courts; implementing a commercial division of specialized commercial courts for cost-effective resolution of business disputes; establishing a statewide network of child-care centers for litigants in courthouses; and streamlining procedures for children in foster care and their families.

Today, she is of counsel to the firm of Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom, LLP, in New York City.

The James P. White Lecture on Legal Education was established in 2000 to honor Professor Emeritus James P. White, who served for 25 years as the American Bar Association’s Consultant on Legal Education. White’s colleagues at the ABA and other friends contributed to the establishment of the annual lecture series in his honor.

“Our annual fall semester continuing legal education program strives to provide timely topics of interest by well-known experts in the government, private sector and the academy,” says Professor Andy Klein, who moderated the program.

The event was inaugurated in 2002 and has raised over $156,000 for student scholarships. “We are extremely proud that this program is able to provide quality continuing legal education to attorneys from Indianapolis and around the country, while also assisting current law students through scholarship support. It’s a win-win for the legal community and the law school,” says Jim Burns, ’75, Senior Counsel at Ice Miller LLP and former assistant general counsel of Eli Lilly and Company, who is the founding organizer of the program.

The program, “Health Law Developments and Trends” was a one-day event with 6 hours of Indiana CLE credit, including 1 hour of ethics credit. The morning featured Rea, who is Deputy Under Secretary of Commerce for Intellectual Property, as well as second in command at the U.S. Patent Office. In addition, there was a session on “Foreign Corrupt Practices Act—Where We Are and Where the Government is Going” by Tim Pratt, Executive Vice President, Chief Administrative Officer, General Counsel and Secretary for Boston Scientific, and Ralph Hall, Distinguished Professor & Practitioner, University of Minnesota School of Law. Nicolas P. Terry, the Chester A. Myers Professor of Law at Saint Louis University School of Law spoke on “Electronic Medical Records: Flavors of Regulation, From Privacy, Meaningful Use, and Products Liability to Device Regulation.”

In the afternoon, Professor Mary Davis, the Stites and Harbison Professor of Law at the University of Kentucky College of Law, addressed “Federal Preemption of State Law: The Supreme Court’s Moving Target.” She was followed by McGoldrick who spoke on patent, regulatory and contract issues involved in finding a way to stop the AIDS virus. Rounding out the day was G. Michael Witte, ’82, of the Indiana Disciplinary Commission, who provided an update of Indiana lawyer disciplinary cases.
At the invitation of the Kenya School of Law, CYNTHIA ADAMS made a presentation on clinical skills curriculum development at the school’s Midterm Review, held in Nairobi in September. Those attending included the Minister of Justice and Constitutional Affairs, Justices of the Kenya High Court, the Secretary of Kenya’s Council of Legal Education, the Deans from Moi University School of Law and Strathmore University School of Law, as well as administration and law faculty from the Kenya Law School, Moi University, the University of Nairobi, and Strathmore University. In ensuing months, Professor Adams will continue to consult closely with the Kenya Law School on enhancing their Advocates Training Programme.

In June Professor Adams visited Turkey as part of a cultural exchange program where, as the guest of the Niagara Foundation, she met with Turkish leaders in academia, business, and government. Also in June, at the Mid-Year Meeting of the Association of American Law Schools’ Conference on Clinical Legal Education, Professor Adams and Professor Carrie Hagan made a poster presentation, “Course Collaboration for a Richer Learning Experience and Institutional Change,” reporting on experiences and outcomes of their collaborative experience with students in Professor Adams’ legal writing course and Professor Hagan’s clinic, and providing advice for clinicians on collaborative efforts.

In July Professor Adams presented “Prometheus Unbound: Applying Creative, Critical Pedagogy in the Global Classroom,” at the Applied Legal Storytelling Conference at the Sturm College of Law, University of Denver, in Colorado. The conference was sponsored by the Clinical Legal Education Association and the Legal Writing Institute.

Professor Adams is a member of the Association of American Law Schools’ newly created Section on Transactional Law and Skills and was named editor for that Section’s semi-annual newsletter.

Chancellor Emeritus GERALD L. BEPKO spoke on behalf of the alumni at an event on July 21 at the Chicago Cultural Center at the IIT/Chicago Kent College of Law celebration of the 50th year of teaching by Professor Ralph L. Brill. Chancellor Bepko was appointed Co-Chair with Indiana Commission on Higher Education Commissioner Marilyn Moran Townsend of Fort Wayne, of the Indiana Reaching Higher Part 2 planning process. He was also appointed Chair of the Academic Affairs Committee of the ICHE and a member of the ICHE Executive Committee. On August 12, Chancellor Bepko served as an Honorary Pallbearer at the Memorial Mass for IU President Emeritus John W. Ryan.

On October 1, Chancellor Bepko was a speaker at a program in memory of Robert Payton, first Director of the IU Center on Philanthropy. He also was appointed to serve on the 2011 Rhodes Scholars Selection Committee for Indiana, Kentucky and Ohio which met on November 18 and 19, in Indianapolis.

SHAWN BOYNE was appointed to the IUPUI Equal Employment Opportunity Commission Council by Dean Roberts for the 2011-12 year. On December 7th, Professor Boyne, with SPEA faculty member Jim White, made a report to the State of Indiana’s Counter-Terrorism and Security Council on the lessons learned from the law school’s 2011 counter-terrorism simulation. Additionally, Professor Boyne was recently appointed to the AALS Curriculum Committee based on the creative work that she has been doing on global curricular issues. The Committee studies changes in teaching pedagogy and disseminates information on innovations in legal education.

KENNETH CHESTEK participated in the third Applied Legal Storytelling Conference in July, 2011, held at the University of Denver, Sturm College of Law. He presented his latest paper, “Competing Stories: A Case Study of Narrative Reasoning,” in which he analyzes the briefs and opinion filed in the recent nationwide litigation over national health care reform to see if the different results reached by the trial courts could be attributed, at least in part, on the different stories told by the plaintiffs in each of those cases. He also was part of a panel presentation (with two professors from the University of California—Irvine) at the Central States Regional Legal Writing Conference, held in Chicago in September. The panel’s topic was “Just the Facts, Ma’am: Using Client Interviews and Role Play to Teach Fact Investigation.”

JIM DIMITRI made a presentation at the Central States Regional Legal Writing Conference at The John Marshall Law School in Chicago on Friday, September 16. His presentation, entitled “Driven Away from Distraction: Teaching Students to Unplug (at Least Periodically) in the Digital Age,” proposed tools to law professors to help them cultivate their students’ concentration and critical thinking skills by getting the students to periodically “unplug” from digital devices and social media. Professor Dimitri emphasized the impairment that multi-tasking and distractions can cause to students’ short-term and long-term memories, which in turn hinders the students’ learning process.

This year’s Central States Conference included more than 80 speakers and was attended by more than 200 legal writing professionals and teachers from all over the country. It is believed to have been the largest regional legal writing conference to date.

JENNIFER DROBAC returned in the fall of 2011 to teach in Indianapolis after a sabbatical leave at Berkeley Law during the spring of 2010 and a visit at Santa Clara Law School during the 2010-2011 academic year. Professor Drobac was an invited presenter on: “Student Speech in the Wake of Morse v. Frederick,” at the Southeastern Association of Law Schools (SEALS) Annual Meeting in Hilton Head, South Carolina in July.

GEORGE EDWARDS and the Program in International Human Rights Law hosted five women’s rights advocates and journalists from Yemen on October 11, at the law school. Professor Edwards talked with the visiting delegates about international human rights law education, research, advocacy for women’s right to freedom of expression and political participation. The visitors included Thuraya Ameen Qasem Dammag, project manager, International Federation of Journalists in Yemeni Syndicates; Arwa Ibrahim Mohammed Al Shawafy, executive assistant and financial assistant, Academic for Education Development; Altaf Shaher Ali Mohammed Al Yousefi, coordinator, Civic Democratic Initiative Support Foundation; Samia Abdulrahman Abdulaziz Saif, journalist, al Thori Newspaper; and Maha Naji Yahya Salah, author and human rights activist. The U.S. Department of State sponsored the Yemeni women’s visit under its International Visitor Leadership project on “Young Leaders: The U.S. Political Process.”

Professor George E. Edwards’ new book, LL.M. Roadmap: An International Student’s Guide to U.S. Law School Programs, held its official U.S. launch at Harvard Law School on September 16. The event took place as part of “Harvard Literati: Celebrating the Works of Alumni Authors,” which was attended by numerous well-known authors. The following week, the European debut of the book took place in Paris, France.

Additionally, Professor Edwards was named a Fellow of the American Bar Foundation in July. The Fellows are selected to participate in activities that advance justice through research and to address the changing needs of the system of justice and the legal profession. Professor Edwards published an article, “How to Choose the Best U.S. Law School for Foreign Lawyers,” in the November, 2011 issue of The National Jurist. He also published “International Students and Master of Laws (LL.M.) Programs in the U.S.: What U.S. Law Schools Will Not Tell You About Choosing the Best School, Getting Admitted, Succeeding in their LL.M. Programs, and Getting a Good Job Post-Degree,” in the Fall issue of the ILSA Quarterly.

Professor Edwards gave a presentation on “China, the U.S. and Law—Opportunities for Continued Transnational Legal Education with Chinese Students Joining Master of Laws Programs in the U.S.,” in Beijing, China at the invitation of the U.S. Embassy on July 26. Also, Professor Edwards was nominated for the John S. Ryan Award for International Distinction.

FRANK EMMERT was again teaching during the summer term in Indianapolis, this year adding “International Commercial Arbitration” to “WTO Law.” In July, Professor Emmert also taught WTO Law in Cairo in the framework of the school’s LL.M. Program in Egypt. During the third week of August, he visited AlHosn University in Abu Dhabi to explore bringing the school’s LL.M. program to the United Arab Emirates. In the fall semester, Professor Emmert taught “European Union Law - Foundations” in Indianapolis. From September 19-23, he visited Universidad Sergio Arboleda in Bogotá to promote the LL.M. Program and made a presentation on “The Draft Common Frame of Reference as the Greatest Innovation in Contract Law since the French Code Civil and the German BGB” at a conference on the latest developments in international contract law.

In the first week of October, Professor Emmert visited Yerevan State University in Armenia to promote the LL.M. Program and to continue his support for the Chair of European and International Law in the framework of the Open Society Institute’s Higher Education Support Program, where Professor Emmert serves as an International Scholar. From October 10-18, Professor Emmert worked in Costa Rica and delivered a three-day training session on International Commercial Transactions at the Colegio de Abogados y Abogadas, the Costa Rican Bar Association, to approximately 300 attorneys, arbitrators, and other legal professionals. The American Ambassador to Costa Rica, Anne Slaughter Andrew, not only delivered the opening address for the training session but also invited Professor Emmert and the leaders of the legal profession in Costa Rica for a breakfast at her residence. Among the attendees were the Costa Rican Minister of Justice, His Excellency Hernando París, the Deans of the three leading law schools in Costa Rica, several of the country’s highest profile attorneys, as well as several representatives of various programs implemented or coordinated by the Embassy. IU already has a relationship with Universidad de Costa Rica and the Law School will now add a partnership with Universidad Latinoamericana de Ciencia y Tecnología (ULACIT). Professor Emmert is exploring opportunities for law school JD students to do summer internships in Costa Rican law firms and at the new Costa Rican regional arbitration center.

From November 10-12, he attended a conference of the OSI Higher Education Support Program in Istanbul and made a presentation on the development of successful research proposals. At the conference, Professor Emmert was also able to present his latest book, a work on the implementation of the European Convention on Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms in Central and Eastern Europe. The book is published by Eleven International Publishing of the Netherlands and brings together analysis on 20 countries in the region. Professor Emmert co-edited the work with Professor Leonard Hammer of Tel Aviv and wrote the overall conclusions.

As a consultant to the U.S. Department of Justice, Professor Emeritus JEFF GROVE completed a research project in connection with a federal prosecution, of a foreign national, under the Economic Espionage Act of 1996—a statute that has been successfully invoked in only a handful of past cases. During September-October 2011, he was a Visiting Professor at Renmin (People's) University of China Law School, teaching a six-week accelerated course for Chinese Juris Master students on comparative elements of the U.S. legal system. He also delivered remarks to a class of international students enrolled in Renmin Law’s LL.M Program in Chinese Law, drawing on his experience over 24 years and 15 visits to Chinese law schools and legal institutions. Professor Grove had principal responsibility for instituting the law school’s summer program with Renmin Law School, which was inaugurated in 1998 and has operated continuously for 14 years.

PRISCILLA KEITH served as a panelist for the CLE “Business of Healthcare: The Development of State Based Health Care Exchanges” sponsored by the ABA’s Business Law Section’s Government Affairs Committee and Health Care Committee and the ABA Health Law Section at the American Bar Association’s Annual Meeting in Toronto, Canada in August. A major component of the “Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act” was the creation of State Based Health Care Exchanges. The State Based Health Care Exchanges would serve as the “store” for citizens to shop for health insurance. Professor Keith’s presentation explored the concept from the practicality of a state’s perspective.

In June, Professor Keith and Professor Emeritus Eleanor Kinney served as panelists in the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation’s Public Health Law Network Webinar on “Comparative Effectiveness in Public Health.” Professor Keith served as a panelist on the topic, “Accountable Care Organizations” at the 34th Annual Health Law Professors Conference in June at the Loyola University Chicago School of Law. Professor Keith’s discussion focused on antitrust and fraud and abuse legal issues associated with accountable care organizations. Professor Keith served as a panelist on the CDC’s Webinar titled “Public Health Law Fundamentals: A Webinar for PHPS Fellows” in September. The purpose of the webinar was to provide an overview of public health, its uses and its past and future impact on health, as well as the legal issues relevant to public health prevention service fellows as federal employees. Professor Keith’s area of interest was the impact of local public health departments.

Additionally, Professor Keith participated in Seton Hall Law Review’s 2011 Symposium “Implementing the Affordable Care Act,” in October. A law review article related to this presentation will be published in the SETON HALL LAW REVIEW in the Fall of 2012. Also, she moderated the panel discussion on the “Constitutionality of Health Care Reform” with David Orentlicher and Tom Fisher, Solicitor General for the Office of the Attorney General’s Office of Indiana, at the Washington Health Care Summit sponsored by the American Bar Association Health Law Section in October.

ANDY KLEIN recently published a book, Craig, Green, Klein, and Sanders, Toxic and Environmental Torts: Cases and Materials (West 2011). Professor Klein was on a panel entitled “Leadership in the Law School Curriculum” last summer at the annual Southeastern Association of Law Schools (SEALS) Conference.

In June, NORMAN LEFSTEIN, Professor and Dean Emeritus, spoke at a conference at the Cardozo School of Law in New York City sponsored by the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers and the National Legal Aid & Defender Association. The conference focused on Padilla v. Kentucky, a 2010 United States Supreme Court decision dealing with collateral consequences of criminal convictions and effective defense representation. In October, in New York City, he addressed a meeting of the American Branch of the International Law Association dealing with “International Perspectives on Indigent Defense.” Also in October, he was a featured speaker at the Annual Texas Indigent Defense Workshop in Austin where he discussed solutions to caseload problems confronted by lawyers representing the indigent accused. During the summer, his law review article, “Excessive Public Defense Workloads: Are ABA Standards for Criminal Justice Adequate?” appeared in 38 Hastings Const. L. Q. 949 (2011). In October, the American Bar Association published his book, Securing Reasonable Caseloads: Ethics and Law in Public Defense, which was supported by a grant from Atlantic Philanthropies. Professor Lefstein continues to serve as an expert witness in several criminal cases, including a class action lawsuit in Georgia related to the state’s failure to provide lawyers for defendants appealing their criminal convictions and an Alabama post-conviction death penalty case.

Professor Pitts Wins Kiss-A-Pig Competition

During the fall 2011 semester, legal fraternity Phi Alpha Delta held a fund raising contest in which students voted for which faculty member they would most like to see kiss a pig. More than twenty McKinney Law faculty members volunteered to be on the voting list. After a hard-fought battle among finalists (Professors Mike Pitts, Nicholas Georgakopoulos, Jim Dmitri, and Jeff Cooper), Professor Pitts claimed victory! All funds from the contest went to Phi Alpha Delta to help fund annual academic lectures and philanthropic events. ■

GERARD MAGLIOLCCA was named the Samuel R. Rosen Professor of Law and presented the Inaugural Rosen Lecture on “Constitutional Liability Rules,” on November 8 in the Wynne Courtroom at the law school.

Professor Magliocca made five presentations about his book, The Tragedy of William Jennings Bryan. Three of those presentations were at law schools: Nebraska Law School, Marquette Law School, and Boston College Law School. He also made presentations about the book at the Indianapolis Law Club and at the Faculty Club on the IUPUI Campus. Additionally, Professor Magliocca presented on “Constitutional Liability Rules” at the Workshop on Political Theory and Policy Analysis in Bloomington, and also at Northwestern University Law School.

In June, MICHAEL PITTS was named a John S. Grimes Fellow and in August he was named a Dean’s Fellow for scholarly excellence (both for the 2011-12 academic year). In June, he served as a guest-blogger at Concurring Opinions. In July, he appeared on Boston’s NPR affiliate discussing voter identification. In September, he was elected to the law school’s Executive Committee, and in October, he appeared on a panel discussing redistricting law at the University of Kentucky College of Law.

FRAN QUIGLEY delivered presentations on “Indiana Drones: International Law, Morality and Robot Warfare in the Heartland” at the University of Southern Indiana on November 10 and on “Strengthening Rule of Law—The Role of International Humanitarian Activities by Lawyers and Judges” at the Appellate Judges Education Institute (AJEI) Summit in Washington, D.C. on November 12. He wrote several articles on human rights issues in Haiti which were published in the Indianapolis Star and other media outlets. Professor Quigley teaches and directs the school’s new Health and Human Rights Clinic, which received the Indianapolis Bar Foundation Impact Fund award for 2011-12, along with support from the Health Foundation of Greater Indianapolis.

FLORENCE WAGMAN ROISMAN, William F. Harvey Professor of Law, was named a John S. Grimes Fellow. The Fellowship supports her research into the current crisis in residential mortgage foreclosures.

Professor Roisman recently published two articles. “Thirteen Principles for Effective Advocacy,” 63 Rutgers L. Rev. 985 (2011), was an invited contribution to a Festschrift for the late Professor John M. Payne of Rutgers School of Law—Newark, a leading scholar in land use law, particularly with regard to the Mount Laurel doctrine in New Jersey. Her “Tribute to Professor Mary Harter Mitchell,” 44 Indiana L. Rev. 667 (2011), was part of a volume dedicated to Professor Mitchell. Professor Roisman had helped to organize that volume, which comprises articles on topics that had been important to Professor Mitchell. She also has helped to raise money for a scholarship honoring Professor Mitchell.

Students and Professors Pull All-Nighter During the “Red Eye Relay”

Members of the law school’s Running Club participated in the Red Eye Relay, a 100 mile odyssey which began at 6:00 p.m. on Saturday, September 23 and ended at 8:12 a.m. on Sunday the 24th. Each team member ran three legs, and the legs ranged from 2.22 miles to 7.49 miles in length. The race started on the IU Bloomington campus and ran through countryside northeast of Bloomington, including the Morgan-Monroe State Forest. The law school’s team placed first (out of 12 teams) in the Open Mixed category and 18th overall (out of 62 teams who started and 59 who finished).

Professor Roisman made three presentations recently. Two were at the Committee on Regional Training (CORT) housing training for legal services advocates from Michigan, Ohio, and West Virginia, held in Ann Arbor, Michigan. Her plenary presentations, both made on June 15, were “The Use of Fair Housing and Other Human Rights Law in Legal Services Practice” and “A Call to Advocacy.” The third presentation was on September 24, at the ClassCrit IV Conference held at American University, Washington College of Law, in Washington, D.C. The conference’s theme was “Criminalizing Economic Inequality” and Professor Roisman was a member of a panel discussing “Brick by Brick: Understanding Systems of Domination in the Core Curriculum.” Her talk was entitled “The Property Course: A Manifestation of Systems of Domination.”

During the Fall 2011 semester, Professor Roisman taught Property in the day division and Housing Discrimination and Segregation in the evening. She continues to supervise students in an Advanced Course-Related Experience addressing issues related to landlord-tenant court proceedings in Indiana. She also serves on the Faculty Recruitment Committee; she continues to be the faculty advisor for the Equal Justice Works chapter at the law school, and helped to organize the student chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) of Indiana.

Professor Roisman was selected to be a founding member of the board of the Fair Housing Center of Central Indiana, Inc. that recently was established in Indianapolis. She was elected to a three-year term on August 29. She also was re-elected to a three-year term on the board of directors of the American Civil Liberties Union of Indiana, and she continues as a member of the board and vice chair of the Inclusive Communities Project of Dallas, Texas. She also is a member of the committee that is planning the 25th Anniversary Rededication of the Washington Legal Clinic for the Homeless, Washington, D.C.

Finally, under the auspices of the Women Trailblazers in the Law Project of the American Bar Association’s Senior Lawyers Division, Professor Emeritus Mary Therese Wolf interviewed Professor Roisman on several occasions between 2005 and 2009 to produce an oral history of Professor Roisman which will be deposited with the Library of Congress and the Schlesinger Library at Harvard University and will appear on the website of the ABA Senior Lawyers Division.

In June, JOEL SCHUMM authored an amicus brief on behalf of a bipartisan group of 71 members of the General Assembly in the high-profile Barnes v. State, 946 N.E.2d 572 (Ind. 2011) case, which held citizens may not resist unlawful entry by police into their homes. The court granted rehearing to address the concerns raised. Professor Schumm wrote the criminal law survey article for the Indiana Law Review for the fourteenth year and co-authored a tribute article for the law review upon the retirement of Justice Ted Boehm: “Recent Developments in Indiana Criminal Law and Procedure,” 44 Ind. L. Rev. 1135 (2011); “Tribute to Justice Theodore R. Boehm,” 44 Ind. L. Rev. 347 (2011) (co-authored with Paul Jefferson). In July he wrote A Review of 2011 Criminal Law Legislation for the Indianapolis Bar Association’s section of the Indiana Lawyer.

He conducted a law school class for several teachers as part of the Indiana Supreme Court’s summer teacher workshop in June and later collaborated on high school classes and spoke with students from Shortridge Magnet School and Decatur Discovery Academy. In July he was a panelist with Judge Robert Altice and Judge Maria Granger on the topic of “20 Years with 6 Suspended and Credit for Time Served” at the “Law School for Journalists” program sponsored by the Indiana Supreme Court and the law school. In November he joined Justice Brent Dickson in speaking with members of the General Assembly at the Indiana State Bar Association’s first “Law School for Legislators”

Other presentations included: “Hot Topics and Legislative Update: Indiana Criminal Law,” at the Indianapolis Bar Association Bench Bar Conference, in French Lick, Indiana, on June 17; “Where to Draw the Line Between Consistency and Autonomy in a Legal Writing Program,” (with Professor Debby McGregor), at the Central States Legal Writing Conference, in Chicago on September 16;

Faculty Spotlight: Professor Emily Morris

Professor Emily Michiko Morris, Associate Professor of Law and Grimes Fellow, is currently working on three areas of research in the realm of patent law: patent claim interpretation and uncertainty, the Hatch-Waxman Act, and patentable subject matter, all of which are solo projects.

Her work on patent claim interpretation has found that while some think there needs to be more uniformity in how patent claims are interpreted, how claims are in fact interpreted is not as important as some practitioners may believe. Her article, “Res or Regulation? Patents and the (Uncertain) Rules of the Game,” will be published in the Michigan Telecommunications and Technology Law Review in spring 2012. Professor Morris’ work concerning the Hatch-Waxman Act points up the difficulty of having a one-size-fits-all patent system. Her article, “The Myth of Generic Competition Under the Hatch-Waxman Act,” will be published in the Fordham Intellectual Property, Media and Entertainment Law Journal in spring 2012. Her work in the area of patentable subject matter analyzes how patent law struggles to keep up with real-world technological advances. She plans to submit a paper on her findings on this subject in spring 2012.

Professor Morris has been with the law school since 2008, and teaches patent law, copyright law, and intellectual property law. She received her undergraduate degree, magna cum laude, from Harvard University; and her J.D., magna cum laude, from University of Michigan Law School.

When not teaching or doing research, Professor Morris has been known to be a fierce competitor in the annual Phi Alpha Delta Chili Cook-Off.

Additionally, he served as moderator for a panel discussion, “Access to Counsel for Kids in Juvenile Court,” at the Indiana State Bar Association Annual Meeting, in French Lick, Indiana, on October 20. This panel discussion followed his work as part of the Civil Rights for Children committee, which drafted a proposed rule amendment to require the appointment of counsel in all juvenile delinquency cases. His article, “Counsel for Indiana’s Kids: A Modest Proposal,” appeared in the September 2011 issue of Res Gestae.

Finally, over the course of the past few months Professor Schumm was interviewed by several media outlets on a wide range of topics related to criminal law and juvenile justice including the Indianapolis Star, Terre Haute Tribune-Star, Fort Wayne Journal Gazette, and the Elkhart Truth. He appeared on Indianapolis television stations WTHR (Channel 13), WRTV (Channel 6), WISH (Channel 8), the Mark Riley Show on WWRL in New York City, and the Ed Wenck Show on WIBC.

In September, Professor Emeritus JAMES P. WHITE was appointed to chair an ABA Task Force on the Accreditation Process. The task force will examine ways to improve the law school accreditation process to make it more efficient and less intrusive. Also in September, Professor White was elected as chair of the Butler University Holcomb Research Institute. He continues as a member and Secretary of the Butler University Board of Trustees and as a member of Atlanta’s John Marshall Board of Trustees.

LLOYD T. “TOM” WILSON led students from the law school and nine other schools in the 2nd International Forum for Law Students, held on June 5, at the Renmin University of China Law School, in Beijing. The title of the Forum was Pro Bono, Experiential Learning & the Law School Curriculum. Professor Wilson also was an invited speaker at the International Forum on Judicial Training, held on June 8 & 9, in Beijing, China. The Forum was sponsored by the National Judges College of the Peoples Republic of China, the United Nations Development Program—China, and the European Union-China Project of Governance for Equitable Development.

On June 11, Professor Wilson directed the 2nd Sino-U.S. Law Conference, held on June 11, at the Renmin University of China Law School in Beijing, China. The title of the conference was “The Changing Face of the Real Estate Finance Marketplace: Two Perspectives on Reform.” The principal expression of reform considered at the conference was the Dodd-Frank bill, formally known as the Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act. As the organizer of the Conference, Professor Wilson recruited three nationally-known authorities to join him as presenters: Cristee Naser, Associate General Counsel of the American Bankers Association Securities Association and Senior Counsel in the ABA’s Center for Securities, Trust & Investment Group; Reginald O’Shields, General Counsel of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Atlanta; and Jason Kravitt, Senior Partner, Mayer Brown LLP and co-founder of the American Securitization Forum. Professor Wilson’s presentation, entitled “What Reform” begins with ‘Reform What’: Causal and Policy Analysis of Banking and Real Estate Finance Regulation in the U.S.,” framed the conference agenda by placing reform measures in the context of assumptions made by proponents of and critics of the Dodd-Frank bill.

From September 4 through 10, the law school was the site of the third annual Program in American Law for professors and students from the Faculdades Espirito Santenses Law School (FAESA), which is located in Vitoria, Brazil. Professor Wilson founded the program and is its director. The program consists of classroom instruction each morning and field trips each afternoon. Classroom instruction explores a topic chosen each year by the FAESA professors. In 2011, the subject of the program was “The Common Law in Principle and Practice.” This topic allowed the participants to gain a better understanding of the common law and to compare it to the civil law system of their home country.

On October 11, in Guangzhou, China, Professor Wilson met with Sun Yat-sen University Law School Vice-Dean Li Zhiping and Dean’s Assistant for International Programs, Zheng Liwei, to execute an agreement for a summer program. The agreement calls for Sun Yat-sen law students to come to the Indiana University Robert H. McKinney School of Law for three weeks, where they will receive classroom instruction and participate in law-related and cultural field trips. Sun Yat-sen University Law School expects to bring forty students to Indianapolis for the inaugural program in July 2012.
IUAA Presents Grants to Law School Faculty

The Alumni Association of the IU Robert H. McKinney School of Law has awarded six grants over the past two years to law school faculty members to assist in their teaching.

Professor Eric Dannenmaier, Director of Environmental and Natural Resource Law Program
2011 Grant for “Bringing Property Law Home,” underwriting the development of simulation and case studies in first-year property law classes.

Professor Antony Page, John S. Grimes Fellow
2011 Grant for “Enhanced Multimedia in the Classroom” for increased use of multimedia and creative presentation techniques aimed at Millennial students, as well as a workshop for other faculty on the topic.

Priscilla Keith, ’93, Adjunct Professor and Director of Research and Projects for the Hall Center for Law and Health
2011 Grant for “Biomedical and Health Industry Compliance Program” to expand course and clinical education offerings in the compliance field and develop a certificate program in health law with a specialty in biomedical and health industry compliance law.

Professor George Edwards, the Carl M. Grey Professor of Law, Founder and Director of the Program in International Human Rights Law
2010 Grant for “Introducing International Law to Our First-Year Students to Help Prepare Them for Practice in the Global Legal Environment.” International law teaching materials were prepared for class sessions for the first-year contracts, civil procedure, criminal law, property law and torts classes.

Clinical Professor Deborah B. McGregor, Assistant Director of Legal Analysis, Research and Communication (LARC)
2010 Grant for “Developing an Online Course in Rhetoric,” enabled attendance at conferences and purchase of needed equipment to create 13 recorded classes and an online exam for “Principles of Rhetoric.”

Professor Florence Wagman Roisman, the William F. Harvey Professor of Law
2010 Grant for “Enhancement of Housing Law Course,” enabled the creation of teaching materials for “Foreclosure Prevention and Alleviation for Homelessness and Renters.”
This year, the law school welcomes two new faculty members and welcomes back a former faculty member. Professors Lahny Silva and Margaret Tarkington have joined the ranks of the law school faculty and Fran Quigley, ’87, has returned to the school to serve in the school’s clinical program.

Fran Quigley
Fran Quigley has rejoined the clinical law faculty as clinical professor of law. He is senior advisor to the IU Center for Global Health, where he works with the AMPATH and Legal Aid Centre of Eldore (LACE) programs in Kenya. He is a longtime legal services lawyer, having served as executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union of Indiana, and as a staff attorney with Indiana Legal Services.

Lahny R. Silva
Associate Professor Lahny R. Silva comes to the law school from University of Wisconsin Law School in Madison, where she was the William H. Hasite Fellow. She is an expert in criminal law and teaches Criminal Law; Criminal Procedure: Adjudication; and Criminal Procedure: Investigation. In 2010 she was a legislative appointee for the State of Wisconsin Special Committee on Review of Records Access of Circuit Court Documents. She also worked as an attorney for Greater Hartford Legal Aid in Connecticut. Professor Silva has received the Evidentiary Objections Award from the American Trial Lawyers College. She also received two CALI awards, one for Advanced Constitutional Law Freedom of Speech and one for Contemporary Issues in Criminal Law. She worked on Connecticut’s statewide legal services initiative, “Ban the Box,” and served as Chair of the Diversity Committee while a student at the University of Connecticut School of Law, where she was also involved in the Black Law Student Association (BLSA), the Public Interest Law Group, and Equal Justice Works, and worked as a law clerk in Hartford’s Office of Corporation Counsel.

She received her undergraduate and master’s degrees from Boston University, her J.D. from the University of Connecticut School of Law, and her LL.M. from the University of Wisconsin Law School.

Margaret Tarkington
Associate Professor Margaret Tarkington teaches Professional Responsibility, Civil Procedure, and Federal Courts. She comes to the law school from the J. Reuben Clark Law School at Brigham Young University where she received the SBA Award for Professor of the Year for First Year Courses. In 2010-2011, she was a Visiting Associate Professor of Law at the University of Cincinnati College of Law, where she taught Legal Ethics, Civil Procedure, Constitutional Law, and Torts.

In an article forthcoming in the U.C. Davis Law Review, Professor Tarkington proposes a new methodology for analyzing the free speech rights of lawyers that works to preserve the essential role of attorneys in the U.S. justice system. She has also explored how the judicial punishment of attorney speech for impugning judicial integrity undermines the core purposes of the First Amendment and impedes protection of constitutional and legal rights to an unbiased and competent judiciary. Her work examining the right of lawyers to criticize the judiciary has been published in the Georgetown Law Journal, the Boston College Law Review, and the Review of Litigation.

She clerked for Judge Kenneth F. Ripple, United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, in South Bend, Indiana, and was an associate at Sommer Barnard in Indianapolis and at Wood Crapo in Salt Lake City.

She received her undergraduate degree from Brigham Young University, and her J.D. from the J. Reuben Clark Law School at Brigham Young University.

Mark Shaw, ‘72, has written 25 books, but one of his latest, Road to a Miracle, is deeply personal. There’s the “road” part: a happy childhood in Auburn, Indiana, college, a series of career attempts, then law school and a criminal defense practice that included work with attorney F. Lee Bailey.

Also along the road: a move to Colorado where he was frequently mistaken for John Denver, TV gigs—he’s been a legal analyst for the Mike Tyson, O.J. Simpson and Kobe Bryant trials—and movie deals. The book details Shaw’s first marriage, a return to Indiana, his career as a radio talk show host and an infamous run-in with IU basketball coach Bob Knight, followed by a sad, messy divorce.

Then there’s the “miracle”: A spiritual awakening, seminary, and, finally, a happy second marriage and the surprising discovery of an adult daughter and two grandchildren he never knew existed that he calls “the gift of a lifetime.”

“It was the culmination of a spiritual journey,” Shaw says.

Shaw, who graduated from San Francisco Theological Seminary at age 60, hopes the book inspires others. But he’s already at work on books No. 25—No Peace for the Wicked, a legal thriller to be published in January—and No. 26, its sequel, Guilty Conscience.

The new novels are based on true stories, Shaw says. Lawyers have lots of good stories to tell, Shaw says, and he plans to continue writing fiction and working as a literary consultant to others who believe they may have a book to write. All the while, he savors his law school experience. “It shaped everything in my life,” he says.

Six days a week, Shaw starts his day in his writing studio in Superior, Colorado, with his dog, Black Sox, breaking for breakfast with his wife, Wen-Ying Lu, and a walk with the dog. Although he has five portraits of his literary hero, Earnest Hemingway, in the studio, Shaw says he knows he’s not a great writer—just an inspired one.

“I just try to tell stories,” Shaw says. “I hope they are ‘stop and think’ books.”
On June 30, Indiana University graduates re-elected Patrick A. Shoulders, ‘78, of Evansville, Indiana, to a fourth three-year term on the IU Board of Trustees.

Shoulders, a member of the law firm of Ziemer, Stayman, Weitzel & Shoulders in Evansville, was initially appointed as an IU trustee in 2002, and then was elected by alumni to the board again in 2005 and 2008.

“I’m honored that the alumni have given me the opportunity to serve our beloved alma mater for another three years. IU is on a great path right now, and I pledge to work hard to continue its success,” Shoulders said. “I want to thank my opponents and encourage them to stay connected to IU and encourage all of our alumni to stay involved with the university.”

In addition to his law degree, Shoulders earned a B.A. from IU Bloomington. He chaired the IU Alumni Association in 2000 and has served on the Varsity Club and IU Foundation Board of Directors.

He is a Fellow of the American College of Trial Lawyers and has played a leadership role in a number of professional organizations. He received the Hine Medal from IUPUI in 2005, a Sagamore of the Wabash in 1996, and the Herman Wells Leadership Award from Sigma Nu Fraternity in 2005.

In accordance with state law, the annual trustee election is conducted by the Dean of University Libraries on the Bloomington campus, with assistance from the IU Alumni Association. Library staff and students undertook the task of counting nearly 16,500 ballots.

IU has nine trustees, three of whom are elected by alumni. Law school alumna, MaryEllen Kiley Bishop, ‘82, was elected in 2010. Her term expires in 2013.
John Krauss, ‘76 Appointed to Indiana Education Employment Relations Board

In October, Governor Mitch Daniels appointed John Krauss, ‘76, to serve on the Indiana Education Employment Relations Board. As a lawyer and expert in alternative dispute resolution, Krauss has been a member of the board’s Ad-hoc Panel of Mediators and Fact Finders since 1991 and is also director of the Indiana Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations. He heads the IU Public Policy Institute—a collaborative, multidisciplinary research institute within the IU School of Public and Environmental Affairs (SPEA)—that serves as an umbrella organization for research centers affiliated with SPEA, including the Center for Criminal Justice Research, which regularly works with state agencies on matters of public safety.

Krauss is a Clinical Professor of Public and Environmental Affairs and an Adjunct Professor of Law. He has more than 35 years of executive experience in government, higher education, and as a business consultant. His areas of expertise include intergovernmental relations, economic development, arbitration, conflict resolution (including labor/management disputes and employment and contract disputes), land use, zoning, political process and advocacy, management restructuring, and international consulting, including governmental reform for newly developed countries.

Black Law Student Association Assists Marion County Alternative Court Program

Members of the Black Law Student Association at the Indiana University Robert H. McKinney School of Law held a clothing drive, collecting business clothes for participants in the Marion County Alternative Court Program. The drive was an effort to help increase the chances for ex-offenders to find gainful employment by providing interview attire. The students collected clothing from October 24-28 and presented the clothes to the program on December 2. The BLSA members also held a resume review session for interested individuals in the program on October 24. Shown in the photo above are BLSA students and alumni, along with the Court Commissioner and staff. From left: Alternative Court Program staff member, Jack Diliberto; Anthony Jenkins, 3L; Maurice Scott, 3L; Marion Superior Court Commissioner, John S. Alt, ’95, Alfred Degrafinreid II, and Tareq Nazamy, ’09.
In Memoriam

Hon. J. Patrick Endsley, ’56

J. Patrick Endsley, retired United States Magistrate Judge, passed away on September 1, 2011. A military veteran who served during the occupation of Japan, he was also a graduate of IU’s School of Business, as well as the law school. During his long career he was an active member of the city, state, 7th Circuit, Federal and American bar associations. He served as president of the Indianapolis Chapter of the Federal Bar Association, and director of the Association of Conciliation Courts. He was also a member of the Federal Magistrate Judges Association and served as counsel for the Sugamo Prison Veterans Associations.

A life-long Democrat, Judge Endsley served as precinct and ward chair, and was awarded the JFK Award by the Marion County Young Democrats. He was admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of the United States, as well as the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Indiana, the 7th Circuit Court of Appeals, and the Indiana bar. Judge Endsley practiced in Marion County from 1956 until his election as Judge of the Circuit Court, 19th Judicial Circuit in 1974. In 1978 he was appointed as a United States Magistrate for the Southern District of Indiana and held that position until his retirement in 1994. His other civic roles included serving as Clerk-Treasurer of the then Town of Lawrence, Deputy City and County Prosecutor, Public Defender and Chief Deputy Attorney General under the late John J. Dillon ’52 from 1965 until 1969. In retirement he served as chairman of the organizing committee for the Federal Court’s Public Defender Program in the Southern District, having served on its Board of Directors for a number of years. Judge Endsley was named a Sagamore of the Wabash by both Governor Roger Branigan and Governor Evan Bayh. In addition, he was a member of the Honorable Order of Kentucky Colonels. A dedicated supporter of the law school’s alumni association, he was a member of the Alumni Association Board of Directors for over a decade and in 1990 received the “Distinguished Alumni Service Award” from the IUAA. He was recognized with IUPUI’s Spirit of Philanthropy award for his volunteer and financial donations to the law school. His daughter Nancy G. Endsley, an attorney at Landman & Beatty, is also a 1988 graduate of the law school. Judge Endsley is survived by his five children: Nancy G. (Vincent Wagner), Deirdre E., Kevin C. (Kerry), Kathleen A. (George) Miroslavich and Rosemary C. (Jeffery) Kemp; brother, Thomas C. (Barbara); and sister, Mary Ellen Kelly. His wife, Eleanor Raudenbush Endsley and a brother, Robert B. Endsley predeceased him.
Hon. Robert H. Staton, ’55

Robert H. Staton served with the 91st Infantry Division of the Fifth Army from 1943 to 1946 and was attached to the 801 Special Combat Force which specialized in reconnaissance work behind enemy lines. He achieved the rank of major and was awarded numerous medals for his bravery, including a Silver Star, two Bronze Stars, and the Distinguished Flying Cross. After returning from the war, he enrolled at Indiana University, where he earned his undergraduate degree in 1952 and his LL.B. in 1955. After graduation, he spent three years as a Deputy Prosecuting Attorney for Marion County. He founded the law firm of Staton & Ward, ran for the 10th District Congressional seat in 1966, and was made a Sagamore of the Wabash twice. He also carried the title of Life Honorary Editor of the Indiana Law Review. A distinguished attorney, jurist, and author, he served on the Indiana Court of Appeals from 1971-2000, where he authored more than 3,000 majority opinions. The first editor of Res Gestae, he also authored several state legal histories, including “The History of the Court of Appeals of Indiana” and “Lessons Learned: The History of Continuing Legal Education and Experiences from Mandatory Continuing Legal Education States.” Judge Staton was also the Chairman of the annual Indiana Continuing Legal Education Forum Update, as well as numerous Appellate seminars. He was a member of the American Bar Association, past president of the Indiana State Bar Association, and the Chairman of the ISBA specialization committee. Judge Staton was an avid supporter of the law school and the IU Alumni Association, having served as President of the IU Alumni Association as well as having served on the Executive Council for Indiana University, representing the law school. He also served on the law school’s Alumni Association Board of Directors from 2004 to 2007. The Intramural Moot Court Competition at the law school is named in his honor after friends and former law clerks of Judge Staton raised money to endow the competition. In 2007, Judge Staton’s own donation established the Honorable Robert H. Staton Best Brief Scholarship which is awarded to a legal writing student. Both of his daughters are attorneys and Jennifer Staton Stoesz is a 1987 graduate of the law school. He is survived by his two daughters, Jennifer Staton Stoesz (Steven) and Elizabeth Staton Idleman (Scott), and four grandchildren.

Stephenie Jocham ‘01

Stephenie Jocham, ‘01 passed away on June 2, 2011 after a battle with a rare form of cancer. Shortly after graduating from law school, she and two fellow women law school alumni founded Hollingsworth Jocham & Zivitz, where she practiced family law. In 2008 she helped to found another family law firm, Jocham Harden Dimick Jackson (JHDJ). An avid volunteer, she worked for many community and professional organizations, including the Indiana State Bar Association, Sagamore American Inn of Court, the Association for Conflict Resolution, the Women in Law Division of the IBA, the National Association of Women Lawyers and the Indiana University School of Law – Indianapolis Alumni Association. She also founded Education Initiatives International to help local orphanages, as well as a program to help cancer patients. She received a Distinguished Barrister award from the Indiana Lawyer (2011), as well as awards from the Indiana Bar Foundation and the Indianapolis Bar Foundation. In addition, she gave her time to serve as a court-appointed special advocate and literacy tutor.

A regular speaker at continuing legal education and other programs, she also served as a mediation trainer at the law school. She was a frequent guest to discuss divorce and family law issues on local television programs as well as local and nationally syndicated radio programs.

A statement from JHDJ says, “Jocham was renowned for her skills as an experienced negotiator and respected for her professionalism as an attorney, but it was her sharp wit, comedic timing, and genuine warmth and compassion which endeared her to colleagues and clients. Despite the challenges she faced during grueling cancer treatment, her humor, grace, faith and courage did not waiver and continued to inspire members of the Indianapolis legal community.”
Honoring the many alumni and friends who support the law school.
Dean’s Report 2010-2011

The Dean’s Report recognizes those generous alumni and friends who have supported the school financially during fiscal year 2010-2011. Donors to the law school are recognized in several ways, including membership in a variety of giving societies, including the Landmark Society, the Century Society, the Black Cane Society, and the Maennerchor Society, all carrying the Partners in Progress giving designation. Other giving societies include the Dean’s Council, and the Law School Associates, along with the Harrison Society that honors the school’s highest levels of cumulative lifetime giving and the Legacy Society, recognizing those benefactors who have made a provision to benefit the law school through their estate plans or other planned gifts.

Giving highlights from the fiscal year include:

- 1,151 alumni made a gift to the law school—the highest number of alumni donors in the past 10 years.
- $1,487,241 in dollars “raised,” which includes outright gifts received, matching gifts received, and new pledges made.
- $1,140,606 in dollars “received,” which includes outright gifts received, matching gifts received, and payments on pledges.
- The total number of donors increased from 1,938 to 1,946, which includes 125 first-time donors to the school.
- The number of donors at the Partners in Progress level of $1,000 or more increased 9.6% from 166 to 182.
- The rate of alumni supporting the law school increased to 12.34% from 12.13% in fiscal year 2009-2010.
- 52% of the law school faculty and staff collectively contributed more than $152,000 to the law school in 2010-2011.
Q: Dean Roberts, this is your fifth year as dean of the school. Can you talk about some of the highlights of your work to generate increased philanthropic support of the law school.

A: Of course, at the top of the list is the recent extraordinary $24 million gift from Bob McKinney. This landmark gift will provide funding for multiple endowed chairs and scholarships for excellent students. It will be transformative for the law school and is cause for celebration.

I am also extremely grateful for the support we have received from many other alumni and friends. Donor-established scholarships give students the opportunity to pursue a legal education. Other supporters have recognized the considerable strengths of our programs and centers and have established funds to support them. And we’re pleased that alumni and friends of the law school have been responding generously with support for the endowed chairs that are being created to honor former law dean and IUPUI chancellor, Jerry Bepko, and Professor Larry Jegen. Both men are incredible assets to this institution and continue to have far-reaching impact on students, alumni and the community.

Larger gifts certainly advance the law school in significant ways, but I also consider the increase in annual fund gifts to be among the highlights of my tenure as dean. The number of alumni making gifts to the school has grown in recent years, and this past fiscal year was the highest level in a decade. Over the past two fiscal years, the number of annual donors giving at the “Partners in Progress” level of $1,000 or more has grown by more than 20%.

I would also like to mention the great help we get from our alumni volunteer leaders: the Board of Visitors, the school’s Alumni Association Board of Directors, the school’s IMPACT Campaign Committee, the Law Firm and Corporate Campaign Chairs, and the Class Agents. These loyal and tireless advocates of the school serve as our ambassadors and champion our cause; their work has generated wonderful fundraising results.

Q: Describe why philanthropic support is so important to the law school.

A: Historically, public law schools like ours were funded primarily through state appropriations. However, as public funding for legal education has diminished throughout the country, our law school has become state-assisted, not state-funded. While tuition revenue provides an important source of funding for operating expenses, tuition has increased significantly in recent years, requiring students to incur large debt. Therefore, high quality academic institutions like ours have become increasingly reliant on the philanthropic support from alumni and friends to enable us to provide our students with a first-rate education.

Q: In 2010, the law school—together with the entire IUPUI campus—publicly announced the IMPACT Campaign. Talk about the success of the campaign thus far.

A: One of the best aspects of being dean is the chance to engage with alumni of the school and learn about their experiences as students. Countless alumni have shared with me that they would not have enjoyed professional success if it weren’t for the education they received from our law school. I’m continually impressed with how this school has touched the lives of so many in such a profound manner. The IMPACT Campaign is an opportunity for alumni who value the education they received, to invest in the future of the school.

I’m deeply gratified for the many gifts we have received, whether it is to establish a scholarship fund or to support endowed faculty positions or to help strengthen an academic program or our efforts to provide real-world experiential learning opportunities. So many alumni and friends have stepped forward in providing generous gift commitments to the campaign through pledges and planned gifts, while at the same time we have seen growth in our annual giving through support at all levels. This growth in all types and levels of philanthropic support has been wonderful.

Q: You previously noted the recent gift from Robert H. McKinney. In addition to the new endowed chairs and scholarships that it will create, what are some other ways it will transform the law school?

A: In many conversations I’ve had with alumni since the announcement of Bob’s gift, I’ve heard several phrases used to describe the way our graduates feel, such as “it’s a whole new day” and “it’s only the beginning.” The energy and enthusiasm I have encountered since the announcement of the gift is inspiring. To have Bob McKinney’s name—which is so well-respected and admired—associated with the law school is a great honor. Bob’s gift is one of the largest in legal education and sends a powerful message about the quality of our law school to the legal academy, to the rest of higher education, to the legal profession, and beyond. As such, it will raise the prestige level of a degree from our school. And as the impact of the gift is felt and our reputation for excellence rises, so will the expectations that are associated with the school. Bob McKinney has a strong belief in what our law school can accomplish. One of his goals in giving the gift is to inspire others who believe as he does that this is an institution of great importance and is worthy of generous support.

Q: The McKinney gift has built momentum for the school. Why is this important?

A: Momentum keeps an institution moving forward toward even greater achievements. We are well-positioned to capitalize on our history of educating outstanding lawyers, judges, executives, policy-makers, and leaders throughout Indiana and across the nation. We are on the threshold of a whole new level of excellence as a law school. To achieve this excellence and realize the true potential of this great educational resource, however, we need to continue to pursue substantial philanthropic support. We hope that the level of generosity and commitment that has already been displayed by so many will inspire others to join with them in supporting the school. With the ongoing support of alumni and friends, our future will be even brighter and I’m confident we can seize the opportunities that our recent momentum has presented us.
n August 22, 2011, the law school, together with Mike Miller, John Muller and Tilden Mendelson, founding partners of Montross, Miller, Muller, Mendelson & Kennedy, LLP, announced the establishment of the Timothy J. Kennedy Memorial Moot Court fund. The endowed fund was created with a $50,000 gift to the school to honor Kennedy’s contributions to the practice of law and in support of the newly-created National Professional Responsibility Moot Court Competition, which will be organized and hosted by the school for the first time on March 9-10, 2012.

Dean Gary R. Roberts says, “We are very proud that Montross, Miller, Muller, Mendelson & Kennedy has decided to continue Mr. Kennedy’s legacy by supporting the law school’s first national moot court competition, on professional responsibility, in Kennedy’s name. ‘Here we advocate with integrity’ is not just a slogan at our school. It is a cornerstone of our mission to produce ethical members of the legal profession. This gift will further that cause for many years to come. And because this competition is a national event, the impact will reach very far.”

Mike Miller, ‘75, said of the late Tim Kennedy, “Tim was not only our partner for more than 30 years, but was a colleague and friend.”

“Tim was an active volunteer in moot court and trial advocacy programs at the law school,” said John Muller. “For over twenty years Tim chaired one of the Indianapolis Bar Association’s grievance committees, quietly working to preserve the integrity of the legal profession. We could not think of a better way to honor Tim than with a gift which will support a national moot court competition involving cutting edge professional responsibility concerns,” added Tilden Mendelson.

Kennedy, ‘83, was a founding partner of the firm and practiced in the areas of medical malpractice and personal injury. He also found time to give back to law students and fellow lawyers by volunteering at the law school.
During the 2010-2011 fiscal year, law school faculty and staff collectively contributed more than $152,000 to the school. That amount represents an increase of nearly 50% above the 2009-2010 fiscal year. There was also an increase in participation from 50% to 52%.

“The tremendous support of the faculty and staff reflects the strong dedication and commitment of those who work every day to achieve our school’s mission in teaching, research and service,” said Mark Wunder, the school’s assistant dean for development. “To have such a high level of philanthropic support says a lot about the excellence of the law school,” he added.
To honor two men who have made tremendous contributions to the Indiana University Robert H. McKinney School of Law and the community, the law school has established the Gerald L. Bepko Chair in Law and the Lawrence A. Jegen, III Chair in Tax Law.

Chancellor Bepko joined the faculty at the law school in 1972, becoming dean in 1981. He was appointed Chancellor of IUPUI in 1986, and the university went through a considerable period of academic and physical growth during his leadership. He led efforts to establish IUPUI as an important component of central Indiana’s research corridor and make it a major urban campus. Enrollment grew by 25 percent, external support for faculty initiatives grew to over $200 million in 2001-02, and construction occurred on more than 20 buildings. Chancellor Bepko led the first six years of the seven-year fundraising “Campaign for IUPUI,” which generated more than $1 billion for the campus before it concluded in 2004.

His appointments as an executive of Indiana University culminated in his serving as interim president in 2002-2003. He then served as the first Director of the Randall L. Tobias Center for Leadership Excellence based at IUPUI, and currently teaches courses in leadership and law and in commercial law at the law school. He is IUPUI Chancellor Emeritus, IU Trustee professor, and professor of law. He also is a member of the American Law Institute, a life member of the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws, a member of the American Bar Association, and is a life fellow of the American Bar Foundation.

The Gerald L. Bepko Chair in Law will provide valuable resources to attract a professor of national stature and support the academic initiatives of the holder.

Professor Jegen began his academic career in the Maennerchor building in 1962. In 1982, the IU trustees named him the Thomas F. Sheehan Professor of Tax Law and Policy, a title he continues to hold. He is a member of the Faculty of Philanthropic Studies at the Indiana University Center on Philanthropy; Internal Tax Counsel to Indiana University; a representative of Indiana University to the National Association of College and University Attorneys; and a co-founder and co-director of the Annual Tax Institute for Colleges and Universities.

Since he joined the faculty, Professor Jegen has taught in the areas of federal and state taxation; business and estate planning; philanthropy; and civil and criminal law. He has been a visiting professor at other law schools, has given lectures at professional institutes to lawyers, accountants, representatives of Congress, to various divisions of the Internal Revenue Service, and to the Indiana Department of State Revenue.

Twice he has received the Thomas Hart Benton Mural Medallion, the highest award granted by Indiana University. Professor Jegen also has received the Presidents Circle Commemorative Medallion for exceptional support of Indiana University; Indiana University’s President’s Distinguished Teaching Award; Indiana University’s Teaching Excellence Recognition Award; Indiana University’s Most Outstanding Law Professor Award (the Black Cane Award) six times; Indiana University School of Law Distinguished Alumni Award; four Special Indiana University Law School Alumni Awards; and the Indiana University Trustees Teaching Award.

The Lawrence A. Jegen, III Chair in Tax Law will enable the law school to attract a senior academic with a national reputation in tax law. The endowed chair also will fund this individual's research and teaching activities.

While substantial progress has been made toward the minimums of $1.5 million needed to endow each of these chairs, additional gift commitments are needed to reach the funding goals. Alumni and friends of the law school who have known Chancellor Bepko and Professor Jegen, and whose lives have been impacted by their leadership, teaching, and service, are encouraged to donate to the funds. For additional information on joining with others who have generously supported these funds to honor Chancellor Bepko and Professor Jegen, contact Assistant Dean for Development, Mark Wunder, at 317-274-8147 or mwunder@iupui.edu.

Alumni Support Faculty Chairs for Bepko and Jegen

Several alumni and friends have already made pledges to the Gerald L. Bepko Chair in Law and to the Lawrence A. Jegen, III Chair in Tax Law. A portion of Robert H. McKinney's $24 million gift to the law school will provide substantial support for these chairs. In addition, here are a few inspiring stories of others who have chosen to support the Bepko and Jegen Chairs. These gifts are all part of the IMPACT Campaign.

• Adam Arceneaux, ’93, and his wife Margaret, have pledged $25,000 to the Bepko Chair. Arceneaux is pleased to be concentrating his gift on “the people and the programs,” he said. “I want us to be a destination school for top legal academic talent.”

Arceneaux is a litigation partner at Ice Miller and joined the firm in 1993 after graduating summa cum laude from the law school. He serves on the school’s IMPACT Campaign Committee, is a past president of the school’s Alumni Association Board of Directors, has served as a Class Agent, serves as fundraising chair for the law school at his law firm, and is the firm’s liaison for the James V. Donadio Scholarship.

• Stephen A. Stitle, ’70, and his wife Elaine, made a $25,000 pledge to the Jegen Chair in recognition of Professor Jegen’s excellence as an educator. Virtually every student who took his classes has a “Professor Jegen story” from their law school days, Stitle noted. He was a student of Professor Jegen’s, and remembers his former professor as being “caring and compassionate about the development of his students. He really wanted us to learn.”

Professor Jegen is more than a great educator in Stitle’s estimation. “He’s as much a part of the fabric of the law school as any one individual has been in the last 50 years,” he said. Donating to the Jegen Chair is a way of honoring Professor Jegen for all he has done for the law school—and all he has meant to the law school—for many years.

Stitle graduated cum laude from the law school and is chairman of PNC Bank, Indiana. He previously served as president of National City’s Bank in Indiana and executive vice president of National City Corporation. Prior to joining National City, he served in a variety of executive positions for Eli Lilly and Company for nearly 25 years. Stitle has served on the law school’s Board of Visitors for many years and serves on the school’s IMPACT Campaign Committee.
Professor Mary Harter Mitchell was a member of the law school’s faculty from 1980-2009, teaching courses in contracts, elder law, law and religion, rape law, prisoners’ rights, and prison literature. She was passionate in her support of our law school, our students, and the underserved population. She earned the distinctions of being named an Indiana University Trustee’s Teaching Award recipient in 2003 and the Alan H. Cohen Professor of Law in 2004.

The law school community and all of the lives that Professor Mitchell touched were deeply saddened by her sudden and untimely passing in 2009. As a tribute to her and her lasting impression upon the many lives she affected, the law school has established the Professor Mary Harter Mitchell Scholarship in her memory. Many faculty and staff members at the law school have already contributed to this fund, raising more than $30,000. It is our hope that our alumni and friends will join us in honoring Professor Mitchell and contribute to the scholarship as well.

The Mitchell Scholarship will be awarded to an incoming student and will be renewable for the student’s second and third years of law school if the student meets certain GPA renewal requirements. The law school will be able to utilize this scholarship to attract and retain high-quality students to our law school, thereby strengthening our student body, and ultimately adding to the number of successful alumni we have in the legal community.

The inaugural Professor Mary Harter Mitchell Scholarship will be awarded for the upcoming 2012–2013 academic year as contributions continue to be received. Please join us in honoring the memory of Professor Mitchell through this scholarship fund.

To find out more about giving to the Mary Harter Mitchell Scholarship, please contact Mark Wunder at (317) 274-8147 or mwunder@iupui.edu.

Law Review Dedicates Issue to Professor Mitchell

The Indiana Law Review dedicated Issue 3 of Volume 44 as a special tribute to the memory of Professor Mary Harter Mitchell who passed away in 2009. ILR Editor-in-Chief for Volume 44, Kate Mercer-Lawson, says, “The articles were specifically solicited for this issue because we thought the authors shared Professor Mitchell’s passion for certain topics.” In addition to articles about prisoners’ rights and women lawyers, there are also several tributes by faculty colleagues. Mercer-Lawson says, “We were even fortunate enough to publish some of Professor Mitchell’s poetry.” For further information on how to order, please contact Chris Paynter at (317) 274-4440 or cpaynter@iupui.edu.
Four alumni of the law school were inducted into the 2011 Presidents Circle on September 16 in the Peterson Room at the Indiana University Foundation. Such induction is a prestigious honor which recognizes philanthropic leaders with cumulative giving of more than $100,000. Members of the Presidents Circle receive a medallion engraved with their names. The medallions have been struck using metal from the original carillon bells that once rang in the IU Bloomington Student Building. In addition, a plaque in the Indiana Memorial Union displays members’ names. The law school’s Presidents Circle inductees were Jim Barkley, ’77; Sharon Merriman, ’75; and Dan, ’74, and Marilyn, ’74, Quayle.

Jim Barkley graduated from the Kelley School of Business at IU Bloomington and earned his J.D. from the law school in 1977. Jim’s wife, Cindy Barkley, graduated from IU Bloomington and also was inducted into the Presidents Circle. Jim joined Melvin Simon and Associates, Inc., in 1978 as a staff attorney and was named assistant general counsel in 1984. He was named general counsel in 1992 and was appointed general counsel and secretary of Simon Property Group, Inc., in 1993. He joined the law school’s Board of Visitors in 2008. Cindy is a full-time philanthropist and volunteer with several Indianapolis charities.

Sharon R. Merriman earned her J.D., magna cum laude, at the law school in 1975 while raising two young daughters with her husband, Roger. She has practiced law in Indianapolis throughout her career and has a general practice at Voyles Zahn Paul Hogan & Merriman. She inspired her children to follow in her footsteps, and when her first daughter graduated from law school, they were the first mother-daughter lawyers in Indiana. When Sharon’s second daughter graduated from law school, they were the first mother-daughters lawyers in the state.

Dan and Marilyn Quayle met and married while students at the law school, earning their J.D.s in 1974. They both practiced law prior to Dan’s election to the U.S. Congress in 1976. Dan served in the House of Representatives from 1977 to 1981, the Senate from 1981 to 1989, and as vice president from 1989 to 1993. Dan currently is chairman of Cerberus Global Investments. Marilyn is a former partner with Indianapolis-based firm Krieg DeVault. She also is an author, philanthropist, and a sculptor.
Partners in Progress 2010-2011 Donors

Partners in Progress are donors who contributed at one of the four leadership giving levels—Landmark Society, Century Society, Black Cane Society, or Maennerchor Society—between July 1, 2010 and June 30, 2011 to the law school. Giving totals include gifts, pledge payments, and matching gifts received by the IU Foundation between July 1, 2010 and June 30, 2011.

*Posthumous Recognition
Annual contributions of $500 to $999 to the law school are recognized by membership in the Dean’s Council. Giving totals include gifts, pledge payments, and matching gifts received by the IU Foundation between July 1, 2010 and June 30, 2011. Annual contributions from alumni and friends help strengthen and maintain the high standards of legal education provided at the law school. We give special thanks to the following loyal alumni and friends who have contributed at the Dean’s Council level.

Law School Associates 2010-2011 Donors

Annual contributions of $100 to $499 to the law school are recognized by membership in the Law School Associates. Giving totals include gifts, pledge payments, and matching gifts received by the IU Foundation between July 1, 2010 and June 30, 2011. The entire law school family is sincerely appreciative of the loyalty of the alumni and friends who contribute annually to the school. We give special thanks the following alumni and friends who have contributed at the Law School Associates level.

*Posthumous Recognition
The law school gratefully acknowledges the members of the Harrison Society, whose cumulative gifts of $100,000 or more have served to keep the school at the forefront of legal education. The society is named in memory of former U.S. President Benjamin Harrison, a trustee of the original Indiana Law School, and namesake of the Benjamin Harrison Law School, both predecessor schools of the law school.

The Legacy Society honors individuals who seek to advance legal education at the law school by investing in its future. The society enrolls benefactors who confirm planned or deferred gift arrangements benefiting the law school. When alumni and friends let us know that they have included the school in their estate plans, they are invited to join the Legacy Society.

If you have included our school in your estate plans, please let us know. Doing so will ensure that we understand your wishes and can use your gift exactly as you intend. It also allows the school to make note of your gift as we plan for the future—and finally, and most importantly, it allows us to thank you, honor you, and show our appreciation for your generosity. We would like to thank the following members of the Legacy Society.

For more information about including the law school in your estate plans, please contact Mark Wunder, Assistant Dean for Development, at (317) 278-8147 or mwunder@iupui.edu.

We Make a Living by What We Get.
We Make a Life by What We Give.

—Winston Churchill

There are several ways you can support the law school, reduce your income taxes, and even retain payments for life.

Types of Planned Gifts:

- Outright Gifts (cash, securities, closely held stock, tangible personal property)
- Life Income Plans (charitable gift annuity, charitable remainder annuity trust, charitable remainder unitrust)
- Revocable Gifts (bequest, revocable living trust, retirement plan assets)
- Other Gifts (donor advised fund, retained life estate, charitable lead trust, life insurance)
Established funds at the law school help to support and advance the work of our various centers, programs, and clinics on projects and initiatives that enhance the curriculum for our students, improve the law, understand its complexities, and disseminate a better understanding of the law to those external to the law school. We would like to recognize the following donors for their support of these listed funds.

Baker and Daniels LLP Public Interest Law Fund
The Baker & Daniels LLP Public Interest Law Fund was established to promote pro bono, clinic, and diversity efforts at the law school. Baker & Daniels Public Interest Fellows work with clinical faculty in the Civil Practice, Disability, and Criminal Clinics and with the Innocence Project.

Birch E. Bayh Annual Lecture
Friends of Birch E. Bayh created the Birch E. Bayh Annual Lecture Endowment to support an annual lecture at the law school in their friend’s name.

Eugene N. and Marian C. Beesley Fund
The Eugene N. and Marian C. Beesley Fund was established in 1973 to support the Ruth Lilly Law Library. Mr. Beesley served as president and board chairman of Eli Lilly and Company. He was the first non-Lilly family member to serve as president. Income from the fund is used to finance acquisitions for the law library.

Ona Chambers Fund
This fund was established in 1974 by the Ona Chambers Trust. Income from this gift is used to purchase art for display at the law school.

Hall Render Fund for Excellence in the William S. and Christine S. Hall Center for Law and Health
Hall Render Killian Heath & Lyman, P.C. established the Hall Render Fund for Excellence in the William S. and Christine S. Center for Law and Health in 2011 for general support of the Hall Center for Law and Health at the law school.

Ted B. Lewis Memorial Fund
The Ted B. Lewis Memorial Fund was created in 1991 by Stephen B. Lewis, Kurt W. Lewis, and other friends, family, and colleagues of Ted B. Lewis, ‘49, principal partner at Lewis & Kappes, formerly known as Lewis Kappes Fuller & Eads. Income from the endowment is used to improve the training of law students in fundamental lawyering skills, supporting programs such as Moot Court, Client Counseling, Legal Writing, and Clinical Education.

Joseph Maley Memorial Fund
In 2010, the Joseph Maley Foundation established the Joseph Maley Memorial Fund at the law school to support general efforts of the Disability Law Clinic, and in particular, the Clinic’s role in serving children.

Barry L. Meadow Endowment Fund
This endowment was established in 1992 by Barry L. Meadow, ’75, and is used at the discretion of the Dean to benefit students, faculty, and programs at the law school.

Mark and Stacey Roesler Intellectual Property Law and Innovation Center Fund
This endowed fund was established in 2011 by Mark R., ’82, and Stacey Roesler to support efforts of the law school’s Intellectual Property Law and Innovation Center.

Robert H. Staton Intramural Moot Court Competition
Friends of the late Honorable Robert H. Staton, ’55, established an endowment in 2005 to honor their longtime friend and alum of the law school. The fund supports the annual Robert H. Staton Intramural Moot Court Competition at the law school.

James P. White Endowed Lectureship in Legal Education
In 2002, James P. White and his friends funded an endowment to establish the James P. White Endowed Lectureship in Legal Education. Professor White served as Consultant on Legal Education to the American Bar Association for 26 years and is a professor with the law school. Income from the fund supports an annual lecture in legal education at the law school.

James H. and Joan A. Voyles Law Clinic Fund
James H., ’68, and Joan A. Voyles established this endowment in 2008 to support the law school’s Clinic with preference given to the Criminal Defense Clinic and other clinic activities which involve law students experiencing criminal defense work and representation of clients.
he law school is proud to recognize John L. Krauss for his generosity and years of loyal support. He is a 1976 graduate of the school and an Adjunct Professor of Law, teaching a nationally recognized public policy mediation course open to students, practicing attorneys, judges and professionals in all public policy fields.

He is the Director of the IU Public Policy Institute and the Center for Urban Policy and the Environment and a Clinical Professor of Public and Environmental Affairs. Krauss has more than 40 years of experience in government, higher education, and business consulting and volunteers his time to countless community organizations.

His philanthropic legacy will establish the John L. Krauss Chair in Alternative Dispute Resolution and ensure that the law school, in partnership with the IU School of Public and Environmental Affairs (SPEA), continues to educate and prepare students for successful legal and professional careers for years to come.

Professorships allow the law school to attract and retain a faculty of highly recognized scholars and teachers. We would like to recognize the following donors for their steadfast support. The following pages list our professorships for the 2010-2011 academic year and the respective professorship holders.

Paul E. Beam Professor of Law
The Paul E. Beam Professorship is made possible by a gift to the law school from the estate of the late Paul E. Beam, Sr., ’21. In addition to serving as an adjunct faculty member, Mr. Beam was an Indianapolis attorney who served as general counsel to the Indiana State Bar Association for many years.

Professor Andrew R. Klein

Gerald L. Bepko Professor of Law
In 2007, a professorship reserved for the dean (or former dean) of the law school was spearheaded by, and ultimately named for, Gerald L. Bepko. Bepko is Chancellor Emeritus of IUPUI, as well as a former professor and dean of the law school whose reputation for administrative excellence will benefit the law school community for generations to come.

Dean Gary R. Roberts

Centennial Professor of Law
The Centennial Professorship is the name given to this professorship in recognition of the rich history of the law school, spanning more than one hundred years, and tracing its origin to the Indiana Law School, established in 1894.

Vice Dean Paul N. Cox

Carl M. Gray Professor of Law
The Carl M. Gray Professorship is named for the late Mr. Gray, a Petersburg, Indiana attorney who made a gift in 1978 to support programs at the law school. Mr. Gray, a former trustee of Indiana University, was recognized during his lifetime for distinguished service by both the Indiana and American Bar Associations.

Professor George E. Edwards

John S. Grimes Professor of Law
The John S. Grimes Professorship is made possible thanks to a bequest from the estate of Mr. John S. Grimes. Mr. Grimes was a Professor Emeritus of the law school who taught Property and Trusts and Estates.

Professor Frank Emmert

Hall Render Professor of Law
The Hall, Render, Killian, Heath & Lyman Professorship was made possible by a generous gift to the law school from William S., ’51, and Christine S. Hall. Mr. Hall founded the firm that is the namesake of this endowed professorship in 1967. The firm has focused its practice on health law and is now recognized as one of the nation’s preeminent health law firms.

Professor Eleanor D. Kinney

M. Dale Palmer Professor of Law
The M. Dale Palmer Professorship was established in 1997 by the generosity of M. Dale Palmer, ’61, a respected attorney and businessman.

Professor Linda A. Kelly Hill

William F. Harvey Professor of Law
The William F. Harvey Professorship was established by Michael D. McCormick, ’80. The former general counsel of Bindley Western Industries and long-time supporter of the law school funded two endowed professorships with his generous gift.

Professor Florence Wagman Roisman
Professorships 2010-2011

Lawrence A. Jegen III Professorship
The Lawrence A. Jegen III Professorship was established by Michael D. McCormick, ’80. The former general counsel of Bindley Western Industries and long-time supporter of the law school funded two endowed professorships with his generous gift.

Professor R. George Wright

Samuel R. Rosen Professors of Law
The Samuel R. Rosen Professorships are named in honor of the late Judge Rosen, a respected member of Indiana’s legal community. The 1933 graduate of Harvard Law School held a number of judicial posts after he moved to Indiana in 1963, including serving as deputy attorney general, an Indiana Supreme Court administrator and the state’s first senior judge accorded “at-large” judicial authority in Indiana. In 1992, Judge Rosen made a gift for the benefit of the law school to honor his Harvard classmate, Cleon H. “Bill” Foust, who served as dean of the school from 1967 until 1973. That gift supports these endowed professorships, one of which is in the process of being filled.

Professor David Orentlicher

Thomas F. Sheehan Professor of Tax Law and Policy
The Thomas F. Sheehan Professorship of Tax Law and Policy was established in 1981 by Thomas F., ’68, and Joan M. Sheehan. The professorship is intended to foster important teaching and research on tax law and policy.

Professor Lawrence A. Jegen III

R. Bruce Townsend Professor of Law
The R. Bruce Townsend Professorship is made possible through gifts contributed in honor of the late R. Bruce Townsend, a professor at the law school from 1946 until his retirement in 1982. He became one of the best loved professors at the school, widely known for his outstanding teaching ability, his wit, and his compassion.

Professor Daniel H. Cole

Harold R. Woodard Professor of Law
The Harold R. Woodard Professorship was established in 2004 and awarded for the first time in 2006. Clara Woodard gave the founding gift and named it in memory of her late husband, Harold R. Woodard. Mr. Woodard was a well-known intellectual property attorney and partner at the firm of Woodard Emhardt Moriarty McNett & Henry. He taught for many years as an adjunct professor at the law school.

Professor Nicholas L. Georgakapoulos
The law school would like to thank the 40 law firms and corporations and 407 alumni who participated in the 2010-2011 Law Firm and Corporate Campaign. Highlighted below are the top firms and corporations.

Scholarship and Award Recipients 2010-2011

Privately-funded scholarships and awards assist our students in lightening the heavy financial burden of law school. We would like to thank these donors for their tremendous support and for recognizing the importance of scholarships and awards to our students. The selection criteria for these scholarships and awards vary, as some reward strong academic record and others are based on financial need. The following pages list our scholarships and awards for the 2010-2011 academic year and the respective recipients.

Barbara Abrams Scholarship
This scholarship was established in 2005 by Jerome, Jeffrey, '81, and John Abrams in memory of Barbara “Bobbie” K. Abrams. The scholarship supports one annual graduate student with both exceptional academic performance and financial need.
